In Memoriam

MARGUERITE C. DOUBLEDAY

She met life's duties with a smiling face,
Where e'er their promptings called her day by day.
She only sought to know where duty lay,
And with the guidance of an inward grace,
She labored faithfully to fill the place
That was to her appointed. Who shall say
That through the maze of life's appointed way
One might its course with finer purpose trace?

The fragrance of a life that thus is spent
Is not for weak and wingless words to show.
Their province is but feebly to lament
The beauty that with time will brighter grow;
And though the eyes of love be filled with tears,
Fond memories will brighten coming years.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

WITH the realization of the seriousness and importance of my task in mind, I dip my quill in ink and set forth the history, as I have been able to discover it in the archives and hidden annals of the world, of an illustrious band of scholars and skeptics, athletes and agnostics, and pineapples and procrastinators—the class of '27.

The first mention that I could find of this worthy subject was in a discarded and dishabilitated math book, to this effect: "Another bunch of dumb bennies has come to school! Why on earth must we have a lotta wise gumps around like them frosh. I just told one of the little greenies that ole man Files gets a big kick outa sob stories and always fires the naughty teachers. Pretty soft for him—he won't get many hours in detention!" This article was presumably penned in 1923, but its author was obviously a sophomore and not capable of unprejudiced judgment. From what I can learn from members of this said first-year gang, they did not look like symbols of St. Patrick's Day, nor were they afraid of the cowardly upper classmen who thought the frosh a low credulous crowd of half-witted nit-wits. As they tell me, they were the only live-wires in the school.

However it may have been, the Freshmen of '23 managed to conjure up enough conceit to give a reception and to force their society on certain lowbrow clubs that needed membership and admitted frosh. More than that they defeated the Sophomores, their arch-enemies, in the Annual debate and thus avenged some of their earlier wrongs.

A certain fall day in 1924 brought the herd of yearlings back together again. "Grosie" and football demanded attention, and the new second classmen's time was divided between proving themselves colossal pests to the frosh and eminent stars to the athletic fans. Thus another year skipped by bringing its usual amount of slips, both unsatisfactory and honor. A back number of the high school chronicle also states that these sophomores made themselves doubly obnoxious to the freshmen by being victorious in the great oratorical clash. Truly, they seemed to be almost one-fifth as great as they thought themselves.

There came the great day when they entered as juniors—upper classmen at last. Their name added prestige to the Junior-Senior Prom; they headed clubs; and they fairly ran the school,—so one member tells me. Taking all this "cum grano salis" they must have been a very nice class.

At length the Zenith was reached, and they ascended to the seat of the high and mighty. As seniors they bluffed and worked much as any other senior class. They were the backbone of every organization, including detention room. One member found a position on the All-State football team, and other luminaries did equally as memorable things. The Operetta was superb, and Senior Dramatics beyond reproach. The year proved a successful one for everybody concerned—even the faculty confesses that it was not below average.

Then dawned the ultimate day of high school labor and they tramped in triumphant procession to lay hands upon the sheepskin. At this point my material seems short, and the chain of events is lost in obscurity. But be it my surmise that their real history has just begun; and be it my hope that no more than the ordinary percentage will die unnatural deaths.

Class Will

THE graduating class of nineteen hundred and twenty-seven of the East Orange High School in Essex County, New Jersey, foreseeing that my approaching decease and subsequent decomposition will occur on some eventful evening of this June, do hereby proclaim to all and sundry, including whomever it may concern, this, my last will and testament.

In which I hereby leave, transfer, deed, consign, and bequeath

FIRST

To my immediate successor, the senior class of 1928, various chattels and goods, to wit:

One (1) faculty, to be treasured highly and held in trust for one year, after which time to become the property of the succeeding class.

One (1) senior hall of study, somewhat the worse for wear, including the sad remains of the demolished pencil sharpener, standing like the tragic stump of a burnt ochre, and also an accordion-pleated dictionary to be used for thunder effect when dropped on the floor (also makes a very satisfactory seat during crowded periods in September).

Several (several) slightly chipped rules and regulations to be respected and obeyed with all the dignity and conscience of a senior class.

SECOND

To my intermediate successor, the junior class, the following personal property:

All the opportunities I was unable to use during my last two years of existence, with the hope that they will be expended wisely.

Several responsibilities, including those of attending to the proper regulation and upbringing of the young innocents and their self-appointed mentors, the insufferable erstwhiles; and the larger responsibility of looking as wise as a junior class should with an expression of "all-earthly-knowledge-is-a-hollow-mockery-why-seek-more-of-it" in your eye.

And last, the infinite pleasure of pitying the toiling seniors while they aspire and perspire throughout the year, and of secretly anticipating the joy of rising to their estate when they sadly pass on.

THIRD

To a younger beneficiary, the sophomore class, these possessions:

The before-mentioned young innocents, fresh from the eighth grade greenhouses, together with the following excellent advice: Treat the poor dears with sympathy and tenderness; remember the golden rule, do unto others as you were done by. Jeer not at the Corridor Patrol, nor gaze impertinently at your betters. Speak of the Student Court in tones hushed with awe and reverence, and beware the swiftness of its retribution for sin and wrongdoing. "Gyp" not in lunch line, lest you be appointed to the C. P. Finally, avoid the error of thinking that labor and study are a necessary adjunct to success. They can both be eluded if you know how.

FOURTH

To the freshman, the class of can it really be '31!

The tender mercies of your elder brothers, and a little information to counteract that which they will obligingly give you. There really is an elevator, although many of your informants are unaware of its existence. Also, there is a stairway for teachers only. You will probably have no need to use it. The drinking fountains have no slots for nickels, and all contributions toward a coffin for the Dead Sea are wasted philanthropy. With these little aids I leave you to discover the rest for yourself.

FIFTH

To the gray-haired P. G's.

A large stock of all the study periods I ever collected and owned. You, rolling in a wealth of them, will doubtless fail to appreciate the legacy. They were among my most highly valued treasures.

SIXTH

To my descendants as a whole and to all who may have a claim upon my worldly goods:

All which remains subsequent to the above specific enumeration. Ponies, decorated text books, the missing panes in the auditorium windows, and similar miscellany are to be divided equally according to the respective merit of claims. (Note to executors: I hope you have a nice time).

The position of executor is open to anyone who wants it. Lacking a rush of applicants, the dirty work is to be hung on Mr. Files.

(Signed)

THE CLASS OF TWENTY-SEVEN.

(Per F. B.)

To which we set as witnesses both hands and as many old Christmas seals as we can get rid of.

Class Prophecy

Report of Committee on Prophecy

WHEN the honor of discovering the future of three hundred and twenty-nine fated seniors was conferred upon us of the committee on Prophecy, we succumbed completely and exhaustedly. In this coma we had nightmares of penetrating a hundred-mouthed cavern of the Cumaean Sibyll, or daring asphyxiation at the Delphic Oracle, or even of braving the midnight Hecate herself. With the return to consciousness there was a return to sensibility, and being Americans of the truest stamp with a substitute for everything, we discovered that the slot machines at the "L", the ferry, and where not were just as prophetic and deluding as the Sibyll's scattered leaves. So we hied us hence.

The exact cost was three dollars and sixty-seven cents, traveling expenses excepted. Of course it took quite a while, because the crazy machines require such a long time to play the tune and print the prophecy; and moreover, after we had loaded one with pennies for several minutes, we began to get duplicates and had to find another one. We took turns getting weighed, and if you don't think its labor when you do it steadily for eight hours a day, just try it. When we had exhausted the possibilities of one machine, it was often a long journey to the next.

We started, I believe, with the one in the Barclay Street ferry house of the Lackawanna. This is a handsome antique, which prints your weight and your fortune, and plays a charming little melody all for one penny. It is rather old, and some of the cards were a bit difficult to decipher, but we managed to get some very good prophecies there.

The Iron Steamboat Company's pier, I think it's No. 1, North River, provided an excellent choice of machines. There were three different makes, each with an entirely new and individual assortment of prophecies, and we managed to get at least thirty from each before running to duplicates.

A search of all the ferry houses on the New York side produced only about five more machines, three of which were similar to those we had used. However we made a remarkable discovery at Tottenville, Staten Island, on the island side of the Tottenville-Perth Amboy ferry. This beautiful machine even went so far as to give pictures with the prophecy, handsome little engravings to illustrate the forecast. These special ones were reserved for the Syllabus Board, the class officers, and other notables.

We gradually had to extend the length of our expeditions, dividing the territory to be covered among the members of the committee on prophecy. The South Orange, Dover, Netcong, and Newton stations on the Lackawanna were productive of results, and the other parties brought in game from the Brooklyn "L" and the Putnam division of the New York Central.

You can readily see that the amassing of all the individual prophecies for each member of the class took considerable expenditure of time and trouble, to say nothing of pennies. After several months, though, the work was finally completed and the results placed on file.

Of course it must be understood that no one is to have access to the files until ten years have passed, because the knowledge of the prophecy is bound to exert an influence in the shaping of its owner's life. We certainly do not want to saddle anyone with the tremendous handicap of a mental depression and despondency which is bound to follow his realization of the fate in store for him. It would be too cruel. For example, take this one: "You are a born salesman, and are sure to make a big success of selling court plaster in the subway stations. If you were not born in March, try again." And this one: "Never mind, she loves you in spite of your face. Don't try to change it, or you will be sorry."

There are the usual number of "You will amass wealth before you are thirty" or "twenty-five," or "forty," or "within six years." They vary only slightly.

But I am disclosing a little too much of these prophecies, and it would be better to stick to generalities. A census of specifically stated professions and those which the committee deduced from the context, gave a large predominance to presidents, with second-story men a close runner-up. Among the others mentioned were the law, dentistry, the butter-and-egg industry, taxi-cab driving, journalism, the stage, and various other forms of art. The class as a whole seems to be headed toward a rather satisfactory future, although this information should not be relied upon too implicitly, coming from such varied sources. Indeed, only favorable prophecy was to be expected for such a remarkable aggregation of intellect as was embodied in the class of nineteen twenty-seven. Appearances are deceitful, nevertheless, and analytical judgment of possibilities is seldom worth much. Only the infallibility of the machine can be trusted to prophesy the future accurately.

The committee now brings its report to a close with the assurance that if, after ten years, you still have enough childish confidence in life to believe that yours will be happier and more unusual than anyone else's, kindly insert a penny in the slot of some antiquated relic of the world's credulity and you will receive "besides your weight and a modern tune, the story of what the future holds for you."

Hopefully submitted,

FREEMAN BLOODGOOD,
Chairman of Committee on Prophecy.

The Junior Class

THE very first year we, the class of '28, entered this excellent institution of learning, we proved our exceptional ability and extraordinary initiative as a body of students. Did we, like other freshies, timidly retreat to the background of school life and meekly submit to the abuse and wrongs inflicted by the older and more experienced students? Not we; we set about to show the pestering upper classmen that we were made of sterner stuff. We proved unsusceptible to the hundred and one practical jokes attempted by our older brothers and sisters. We instinctively disbelieved when we were told that we could go to Wittrock's during study periods and charge things in the lunchroom; and we learned our way about the school with amazing swiftness. We immediately organized Student Government in study halls, whereby we can enjoy our periods of relaxation without the watchful eye and careful ear of the faculty. Not only did we begin Student Government despite the discouraging sneers and snickers of our jealous superiors, but we have successfully maintained and improved it for three years. Thus at once we established our merit.

As sophisticated sophomores, we started out to do to the freshmen as had been done unto us. Not all our time was taken up, however, by initiating last year's greenhorns into the wonders and mysteries of high school. We entered industriously into all the activities open to us, and loyally supported the various clubs and organizations in the school. Besides contributing helpful members to the law-making and order-keeping courts and councils, we entered enthusiastically into the lighter, more carefree of the school activities. We began to produce some able and intelligent orators, both in the boys and in the girls; others among us were talented vocally and joined the Glee Clubs; still others went out for tennis, golf, or swimming. We trained many athletes to do future great things in football, basketball, soccer, baseball and track. All in all we accomplished much in our second high school year, and went a long way toward attaining a distinctive name for our class.

In this, our junior year, we have been developing from silly sophomores to serious seniors. We have spent the year in aiding the class of '27 in practically all of its important activities. Without us, the most important social event of the season, the Junior-Senior Prom, probably would have been a failure. Without us, the new Girl Reserve Organization could doubtless never have been successfully begun. Yes, we play quite an important part in all school events, social, athletic, and scholastic. Many of us, superior in the intellectual sense, have been invited to join the French, Spanish and Mathematics Clubs. Many are helping the Drama Study Club through a successful year. We have been developing some very fine athletes, and hope that next year they will give East Orange High School the name she deserves. In short, we hope to prove bigger and better seniors than East Orange ever had before.

Next year we will have an excellent football team under Captain Weinzier, and we hope to make a still better record than in the years gone by (yes we even intend to beat Barringer). In every way we would like to improve upon this year's seniors, if that is possible. Surely we have an excellent record in the past, and we want to prove ourselves worthy of our Alma Mater. Make way, old seniors, for new and better ones!

NE bright September morn, a year ago last fall, four hundred and four lusty, albeit innocent young grammar school graduates descended upon East Orange High School with the well-meant intention of painting it a deep, dark vermilion in the form of red and blue emblems of honor.

Their timid approach and entrance belied the stout resolve in their hearts, and it is noteworthy that, for all their self assurance, the school looked awfully large and they felt exceedingly small and unimportant—if not smaller.

It will be a surprise to many to learn that this un auspicious occasion marked the advent of the class of nineteen hundred and twenty-nine. Ourselves—no less!

Even our new teachers misunderstood us at first, taking our strength and dignified attitude for mere stupidity. Some went the extent of bewailing (in our presence) the passing of '28 and making odious comparisons. This would, perhaps, have daunted less courageous souls, but somewhere or other we had heard that before, so with heads up, chests out, and feet together, we proceeded to demonstrate for the benefit of all our innate superiority over the supercilious Sophomores. We succeeded. Even today Miss Rupert was heard telling some backward 1930's, in words of one syllable of course, that they could never, never hope to match the intellect and wit of their illustrious predecessors, 1929, mighty now, in sophomorical dignity.

It must be admitted by all and sundry that the class of '29 is in a fair way to leaving something more to E. O. H. S. than an occasional name scratched in a desk by a sharp instrument, preferably a compass.

As Freshmen, our lot was much as other Freshmen. Though we wore longer and wider trousers, shorter hair and skirts, we were what we were, credulous, gullible Freshmen. Unwittingly we loaned our dimes and nickles to certain pseudo-humorous Sophomores (and also a few low-caste juniors) to receive the familiar little slip complimenting us on our easy going ways.

Elevators were searched for in all seriousness, and for a half year we maintained a true freshman-like attitude by paying for our extra butter!

With the coming of spring, however, we definitely established a new grip on existence. Track and baseball received many valuable recruits from our number as had football, basketball, and hockey—the last named sport being revived at the instigation of one of our own members. Finally, in the annual Freshman-Sophomore debate, we convinced the world (yet at large) in general, and ourselves in particular of our natural superiority over '28. This was doubly accomplished by our winning the decision and also the honor of having had the best speaker on our team.

This year, we are glad to remark, our numerous talents are receiving their deserved recognition. In mercy and justice we surpass all. Freshmen and Seniors alike tremble at our dread voice, for who but a twenty-niner to preside over the student court,—Chief Justice Donald Lincoln forsooth. Then there is the matter of the students' council in which we are a respected and responsible factor. Our own Sophomore Council is an unparalleled example of dignity and political efficiency.

As to sports, '29 has fulfilled the expectations of last year. Football, hockey, and track have all benefited through our patronage, as have also basketball, baseball, and swimming. A sophomore broke two state records for the hurdles; another has won many points for the swimming team; several Sophs "Heeled-and-toed" it on the Soccer team; others helped to carry out a successful basketball season; "Grosie" looks to us for next year's football hopes. Our girls acquitted themselves with credit in basketball and field hockey. Lastly, sophomore C. P's. have done remarkable work behind the building during lunch periods.

There is nothing as yet in the annals of the class of nineteen hundred and twenty-nine but indicates a renowned and successful future for us, and what is more, added luster to the best traditions of the finest high school in the state, E. O. H. S., for which, in a period of two years, we have already conceived a sincere affection and devotion.

The Freshman Class

MORE loyal group of students never entered E. O. H. S. than the Freshman Class of 1927. From the first they adapted themselves to the life of the school, taking part in all the activities.

Shortly after school opened, the Freshman Council, which is comprised of two members from each Freshman home room, was organized, and the president and vice-president were elected. This year for the first time the Freshman Council has had charge of the order of Lower Class Chapel. This has proved a success.

At the call for Football candidates the Freshmen responded with amazing alacrity, one of them even succeeding in being a sub on the first team.

In the annual swimming meet among the girls, the Class of

'30 showed splendid ability, both in swimming and in diving; while the basketball team has turned out many promising players.

A Freshman Debating Club was formed soon after school opened, and has developed several debaters of much promise.

Indeed, this year's Freshman Class is probably the most active one that has ever entered the High School.

As Freshmen, we entered the E. O. H. S. only to go rambling through the mysteries of the three-story building under the guidance of the Sophomores. For some unknown reason we insisted on going "down" the "up" stairs, and "up" the "down" ones, just as all the Freshmen have done, and will do in the years to come. Now we, in turn, will become dignified Sophs, making the innocent, humiliated Freshmen bow down at our every command.

Student Council

AST Orange's august legislative body, the Student Council, has the utmost power to accomplish things, nor is it backward in exerting this power. Under the leadership of Franklin Lincoln, many important questions have been settled and a new proficiency in school government established. Two new members were admitted, representing the Student Court and Stamp Club. These two additional names make the membership of the Student Council total forty-four.

In September a small group of students were appointed by the Council to act as judges of the Court. Later, at the demand for more discipline, the number of the judges was increased to eighteen.

The annual question of smoking on the school block made its usual appearance. For a while it loomed as a stumbling block for the dignity of the Council. Each meeting found filibusterers ready to wittily argue the question for the benefit of an amused audience. Thanks to the true fibre of the Council this period of dallying was passed, and the smoking question settled quite firmly and permanently.

The question of a new scholastic emblem arose. It was answered acceptably by Marjorie Raab, who succeeded in perfecting a design worthy of the fastidious Council. In recognition of this service, she was awarded an emblem.

As time passed, it was discovered that comparatively few East Orange students knew the rules and regulations of their own Alma Mater. This discovery gave rise to the question of a Book of Rules. This motion was approved by the Council, and President Lincoln appointed a committee to edit and publish the book.

The new year was still in its swaddling clothes when two ambitious lobbyists began campaigning for "bigger and better" representation from the lower classes. In true Burke-like fashion they argued this question "vital to the success of the school." The Student Council was aroused by this new question and made independent investigation. At last a compromise was reached, and the question was settled changing practically nothing. The two noble statesmen retired crying "Death and destruction!"

Soon there came around that time of the year when the blood is sluggish and the brain dull—spring. The worthy councillors were a prey to the prevalent fever, and the number of attendants looked like the sum to infinity. At the request of the more faithful representatives a law was passed to the effect that any members absent without excuse from two meetings were automatically dropped. With this law in effect, attendance returned to par.

The Student Council, for all its sustained dignity, can break loose and a cheer a football team to victory. They did more than that this year. They stooped to the low caste of salesmen and capped the student body in red and blue. These "spirit" hats were a new and original creation.

This year the Student Council was the recipient of an even greater honor than ever before. Little as some people may think of East Orange High School, it is, nevertheless, famous for its system of student government. New Brunswick, hearing the story of this wondrous legislative body invited representatives to make them a visit and to "show them how." Later in the year the Council played host to New Brunswick representatives.

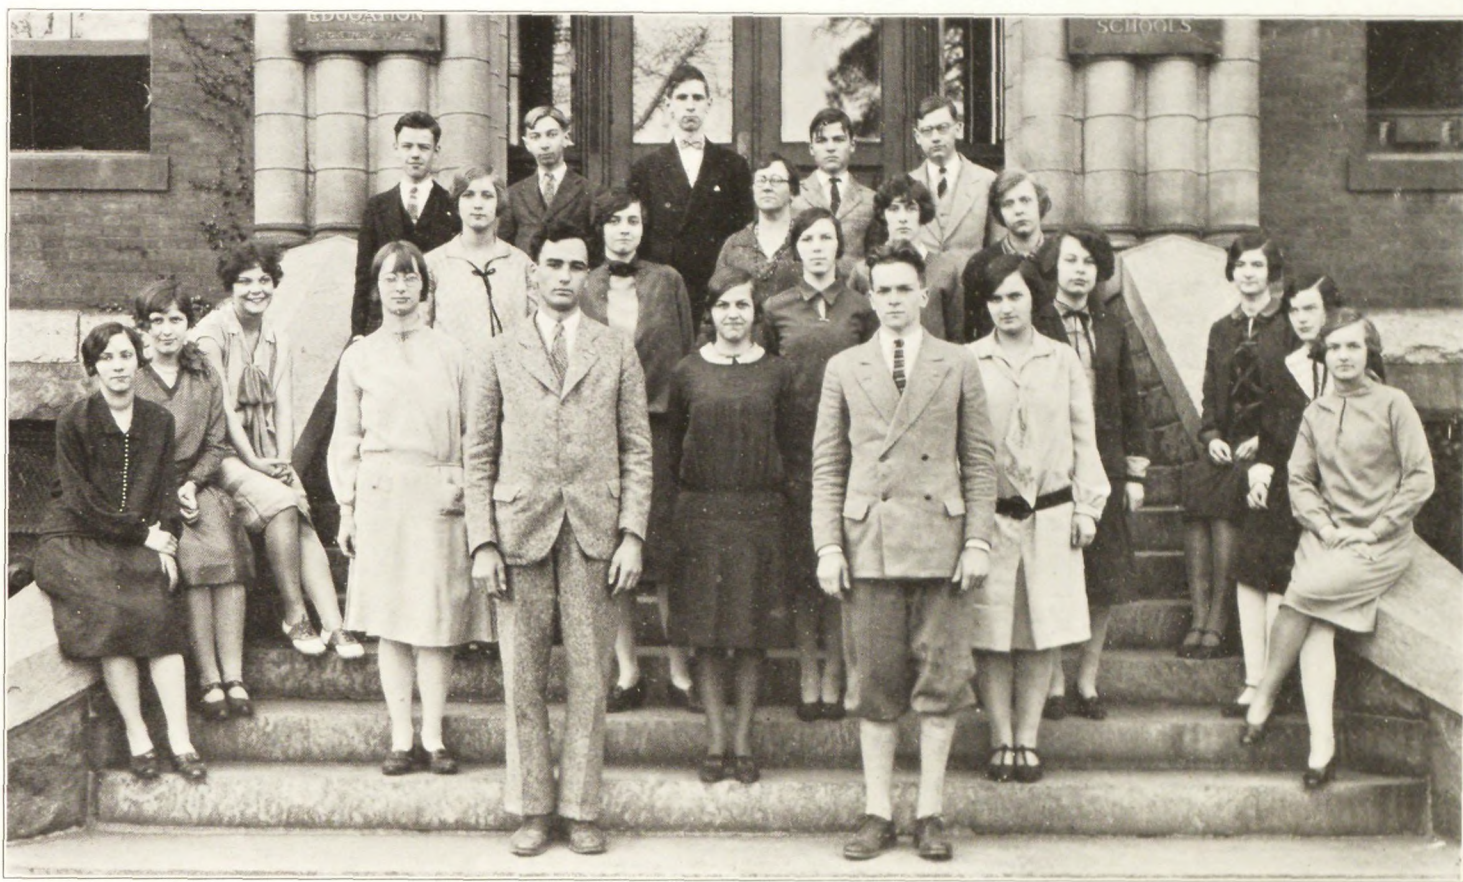

The term of this year's legislators draws to an end. That the Council has both succeeded and failed is a natural conclusion, but that their successes have quite out-balanced their failures is a creditable proof that the Student Council has become the strongest and most efficient factor of life at East Orange.

Miss Elizabeth Miles	Faculty Adviser

HE eighth season of the Drama Study Club has been a most successful one. The amendment to the constitution allowing third year students of high average to join has resulted in a large and active membership.

Our faculty adviser has tried out very successfully the plan of having student coaches produce plays under her general supervision. This has given valuable training to members desiring it and has made it possible for the club to produce more plays than in former years. The plays given ranged from the poetic Falcon of Tennyson and the spiritual Servant of the House of Charles Rann Kennedy to the light comedy, The Man in the Bowler Hat by A. A. Milne.

The officers this year have received invitations from the Drama Guild of the Oranges to attend its "workshop" meetings. From these meetings, the club has gained through its representatives valuable information concerning diction, make-up, and the other essentials of good stage production.

The avowed aim of the club is to help to produce a more intelligent drama-reading and theatre-going public. The club of 1926-1927 feels that it has done much to further this aim.

GIRLS' DEBATING CLUB

The Girls' Debating Club

HE Girls' Debating Club can well be proud of its record for the past year. Although the first meetings were not remarkable for the number of girls applying for membership, the succeeding ones were enriched not only by new members, but by the increasingly good work of the club.

Under the tutelage of Mr. Galpin, the club practised a much stricter adherence to parliamentary procedure than had been its custom. To lighten the monotony of debating, open forums and extemporaneous speaking contests were introduced. Four members of the club, the only Ken Mair in it, participated in the extemporaneous speaking contest held in chapel; and two took places.

The debating in the club was not up to its usual standard at the beginning of the year, because practically all of the new members were inexperienced; but they have greatly improved, so that all have become able debaters. Some of the girls have tried out for interscholastic debates and have made teams. Ruth Lindsay, who participated in the first debate, acquitted herself so well that she was voted best speaker. Peggy Delaney and Rivera Ingle were also on varsity teams. The Ken Mair in the club were Welfare Federation speakers, and many of the club members tried out in the Times Oratorical Contest. Thus, the club has been well represented in outside activities.

The Girls' Club co-operated with the Boys' Club in selling the famous E. O. H. S. writing paper. They have also had several joint meetings, including a very successful and enjoyable social.

The officers for the first half-year were: President, Rivera Ingle; vice-president, Peggy Delaney; secretary, Florence Shapiro. The officers for the second half were the same except that Ruth Lindsay replaced Peggy Delaney as vice-president.

The Art Club

THE Art Club has for its aim the development of a broader knowledge of the history of art; that is, the Fine Arts as expressed in architecture, sculpture and painting from the earliest period to the present date; so this year the members have correlated art, history, and literature.

The members have studied the art, history, and literature of Egypt, Greece, Italy, Spain, Holland, England, and America; covering a wide range of periods and types of art, including the Egyptian, Byzantine, Romanesque, Saracenic, Gothic, Renaissance, and modern. As a sample of the type of programs, the talks devoted to Florence included under the heading of art, a study of Grotto, outstanding painter and sculptor, and especially of his masterpiece, "The Campanile of Florence;" under literature, the life and works of Dante, the great Italian poet and friend of Grotto; and under history, a survey of the two political parties existing in Florence at the time, and of their influence on art and literature. Each of the above mentioned countries was studied in the same manner. The different members presented the talks on the various topics.

Early in the year, the Club spent a very profitable afternoon in the Newark Museum, and some of the members visited the Philatelic Exhibition in New York. During the second half of the year, the club made a pilgrimage to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and a tour of our own building, inspecting both the fine and plastic art represented in the Auditorium, the library and the class room.

One of the high lights among the regular meetings was an illustrated talk by Miss Hackett, the faculty adviser, on the art centers which she visited on her recent trip to Europe, the West and Alaska. The members were enchanted both by the beautiful pictures which Miss Hackett had collected and by the interesting things which she related concerning her trip.

Instead of the customary social, a most successful visitors' day was held, on which occasion a special program was presented and tea was served in the model apartment to the members and their guests.

The officers for the year were: Marjorie Raab, president; Polly Vatter, vice-president; and Margaret Walker, secretary.

HE meetings of the Math Club, held every other Wednesday, are the gathering place of all seniors who desire knowledge in the more unique branches of mathematics. Topics of interest to all members are explained by students, and general discussion on the questions takes place.

Owing to the lack of interest in the problem contest last year, the members of the club voted to abolish this heretofore annual fixture.

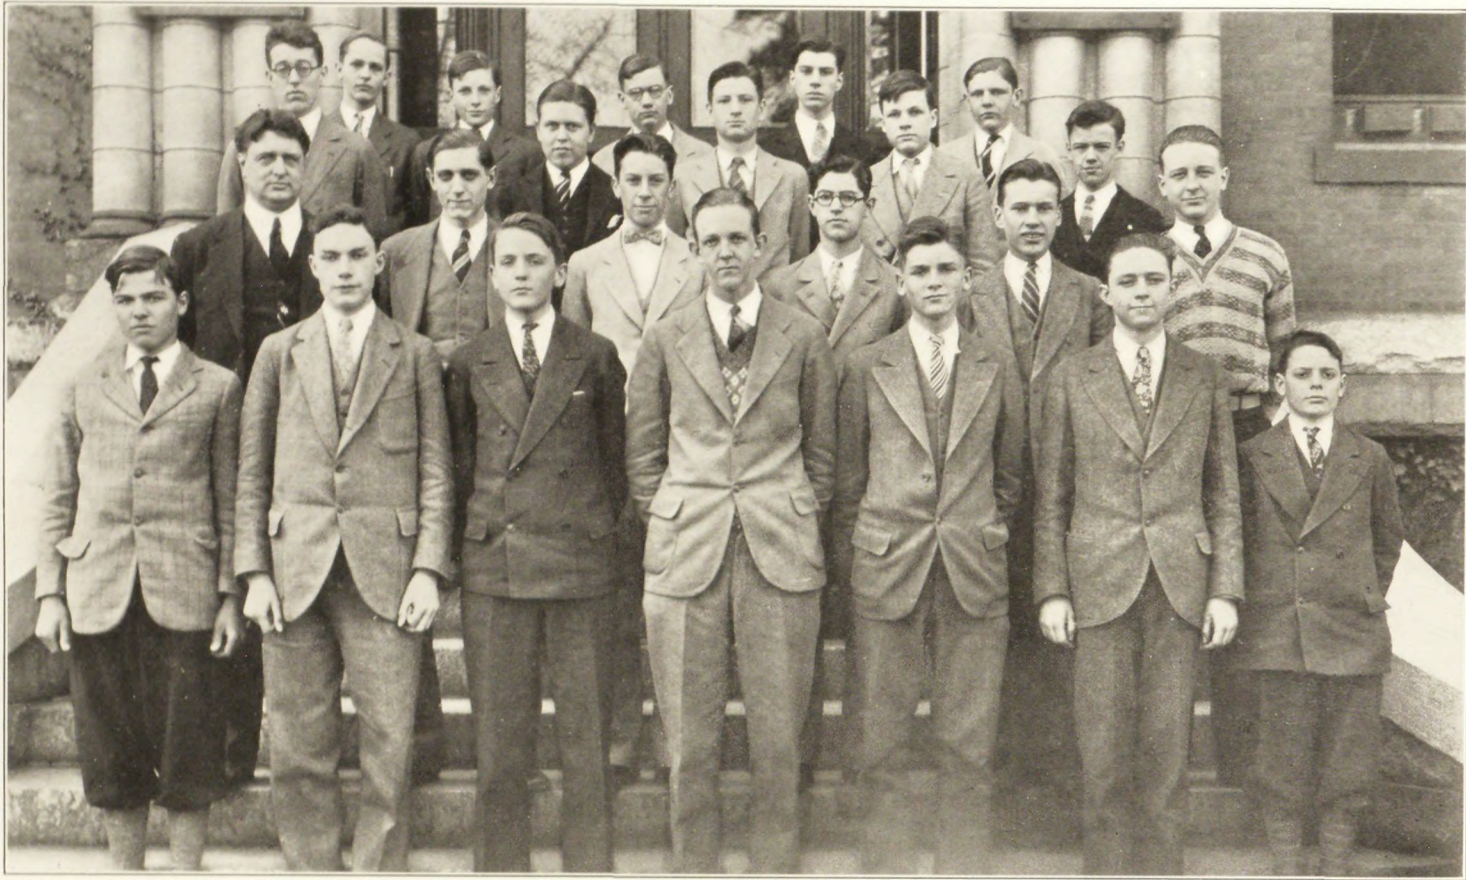

Among the features on the program for the fall were instruction in the use of the slide rule and surveyor's transit. All the members who elected surveying were divided into three groups and assigned to Mr. Mallory, Mr. Palmer, or Mr. Marshall. One group took a trip to Eagle Rock, and much useful and interesting knowledge was gained by all who turned out for surveying.

The usual sale of football buttons was carried out very successfully, the entire stock being disposed of.

The highlights among the talks given by students during the year were "The Fourth Dimension," "Black Magic," and "The History of Logarithms."

At the last meeting in February twenty juniors who had had exceptionally good marks in mathematics during their course were welcomed into the club.

A goodly number of members turned out for the annual spring picnic. At the outing, the mathematicians forgot all cares and, in the company of several of the members of the Mathematics Department, thoroughly enjoyed themselves in the work. At a short business meeting after lunch, officers for the coming year were elected.

First Row: Everett Auer, William Till, Elmer Fisher, Robert Daley, Alfred Guest, James Denison, Willard Eddy.

The Engineering Club

IN the physics classes, discussions often arise on matters dealing with astronomy, chemistry, mechanics and similar subjects; and, since the time cannot be taken from the class period for these discussions, it was thought worth while to form an organization in whose meetings the members would have an opportunity to learn more about the wonders of modern science. Accordingly, the Engineering Club of the East Orange High School was formed. The following officers were elected to guide the club, with Mr. Marshall as the faculty adviser; Robert Daly, president; Alfred Guest, vice president; Elmer Fisher, secretary; and William Till, treasurer. A program committee consisting of Alfred Guest, chairman; James Denison, William Pullin, and Mr. Marshall was elected.

At the second meeting of the club, some most interesting experiments were performed with liquid air, such as making mercury hammers and frying or freezing eggs. At the same meeting, a talk was presented on the subject of electrons. At a later date, a talk was given upon that mystifying topic, the moon. At the next meeting the topic for discussion was "The Earth," its origin, and the various methods of weighing and measuring it. The use of a small electrical furnace in melting metals was demonstrated at another meeting.

In addition to the regular meetings, the club has made trips to several of the large manufacturing plants in the vicinity.

Since the first meeting of the club, five new members have been admitted, making a total of twenty enrolled members. The meetings have been well attended; and, on several occasions, the meeting room has been crowded with visitors, who have come in to witness the demonstrations. One of the best things about the Engineering Club is that at each meeting its members receive something of real worth and permanent value. Thus the prospects of this club appear promising indeed; and, as the years advance, the Engineering Club will become one of the leading organizations of the East Orange High School.

The Glee Clubs

Fred Porter*President of the Boys' Glee Club*
Marjorie Grosvenor*President of the Girls' Glee Club*

ONE of the most active organizations in the East Orange High School is the Boys' and Girls' Glee Club. This organization, which is under the leadership of Mrs. Archer, has made more progress during the year 1926-1927 than ever before.

Some of the purposes of the Glee Club are to help the boys and girls who are interested to become familiar with the Literature of Music; to stimulate an interest in such literature; to inspire artistic and beautiful interpretation; and to make singing a joyful experience. Experience is obtained through the opportunity given for the boys and girls to sing before audiences. Another great advantage offered by the Glee Club is the chance for chorus development and solo work. The boys and girls have the privilege of singing in the assembly before the large groups of the student body; and also before other audiences. Here the same privilege is offered for solo work.

Perhaps one of the finest things offered is the opportunity for voice development through the vocal classes. Mrs. Archer has organized classes which study the proper development of the voice. It is interesting to know that there are many boys and girls who take advantage of this privilege. Those who attend these classes feel that they have been greatly benefited.

One of the great events which every member of the Glee Club anticipates is the Operetta. The Operetta is the real showing of the work of the organization.

During the five years that Mrs. Archer has been directing the Glee Club, two concerts and four operettas have been given. The operettas are Bells of Beaujolais by Coerne, Maid and the Middy by Tracy, All at Sea by Gilbert and Sullivan, and this year The Mikado, also by Gilbert and Sullivan. "Bigger and better," might almost seem to be the motto of the club.

THE ORCHESTRA

The Orchestra

IN the four years that the class of 1927 has occupied the corridors of this school, the progress made in the Department of Instrumental Music is probably the most noteworthy. At first the classes in instrumental instruction were comparatively small; but, through the kindness of many organizations, including the Home and School Association, and the Teachers' Association, several instruments were given to the department. The pupils in the classes rapidly increased in number, and at present form a very large group.

The East Orange High School Orchestra, representative of this group, has gained for itself a state-wide reputation. The orchestra was chosen from many candidates to furnish the music for the state convention of the High School Teachers' Association for two successive years. Several theatres in Newark and the vicinity invited the orchestra to play for their audiences, but only a few of these invitations could be accepted. One of the orchestra's concerts was broadcast, and, incidentally, it was only the second time that a high school orchestra had been "put on the air" in this state. Several times the orchestra was asked to play at dinners given by various clubs, among which were the Newark Contemporary Club and the Rotary Club of the Oranges. The Supervisor of Music in Bloomfield invited the orchestra to give a concert for the students of the Bloomfield High School.

A member of the East Orange High School Orchestra was chosen to play in the nation-wide high school orchestra. The national orchestra is chosen annually from the high schools in the country to play for the National Superintendents' Convention. The calibre of the East Orange High School Orchestra is shown best by the fact that in the state of New Jersey it is the only orchestra from which a delegate was chosen for the national orchestra. All the credit for this progress and improvement must be given to Mr. Clarence P. Herfurth, who has worked untiringly to put East Orange High School in the limelight musically.

Faculty Advisers	Miss Lord, Mr. Garcia

UE to the combined efforts of Miss Lord and Mr. Garcia, the Spanish Club has enjoyed a most successful season.

At the beginning of the year a short play was presented by three of the members, which proved to be very interesting to those who were able to understand it. After the Christmas holidays, membership in the club was extended to all second year Spanish students having high marks. With the admission of these new members, the club rose to still greater heights. A play written by Mr. Garcia was given later in the year, and met with great acclaim.

Shortly after this, the club took a long contemplated trip to the Spanish-American Museum in New York City. Many interesting facts concerning Spanish life and customs were gleaned from this trip, and greater interest in the study of Spanish was instilled in the members.

Before the club disbanded for the year, the usual social was held, at which games and feasting predominated, especially feasting.

The Spanish Club wishes to extend its enthusiastic thanks to Miss Lord and Mr. Garcia for all they have done to help in making it a good club.

The Girls' Rifle Club

THE Girls' Rifle Club has been enthusiastically supported this year by about fifty girls, many of whom have received National Rifle Association and Junior Rifle Corps medals. Some of the girls are Pro-Marksmen; others, Marksmen; and a few are Sharpshooters.

The Club has endeavored to make the girls familiar with the correct handling, operation, and care of a rifle; it has given the girls confidence and has destroyed their timidity when using a gun; and it has developed a spirit of keen competition and friendly sportsmanship in all its activities.

Just before the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays, the club staged a turkey match for the purpose of heightening the interest and determining the best shooters. In order to widen the scope of competition, the club entered as a unit in the National Rifle Association at Washington. As a member of this national organization, the club has had an opportunity to compete with similar clubs all over the country.

The girls who are members of the Girls' Rifle Club this year will, no doubt, always cherish a warm remembrance for the days of enjoyable and profitable recreation spent on the range.

Mr. Davis is a capable faculty adviser, and he has done much to make the club a success.

The officers for the year are: President, Mildred Matthews; Vice-President, Martha Thorkelson; Secretary, Harriet Deans.

Football

FROM a hasty glance at the record of the 1926 football team, the casual observer may carry away the impression that last fall East Orange failed to come up to the standard set in former seasons. This erroneous idea would most likely come from the fact that our greatest rival, Barringer, won the annual Thanksgiving game, and that Plainfield defeated us. On the other hand, a more careful observer would notice that the team went through an exceedingly hard season of eight games, losing only two and tying a third.

The first opponent on the schedule was the Hackensack eleven. This game was typical of early season games and marked with frequent errors and fumbles, but East Orange was able to shatter the visiting team's defense and pile up a score of twenty-seven to six (27-6).

On the following Saturday, East Orange journeyed to Atlantic City and humbled the home team by the score of three to nothing (3-0). This game was marked by a long intercepted pass by Berger, and a pretty drop kick by Scriggins.

The first League game was played with Montclair High School and once more East Orange came out on top. The score was thirty-nine to eight (39-8). The fans received plenty of thrills in the game and witnessed a sensational ninety-six yard run for a touchdown by Berger.

East Orange won the fourth consecutive game when we defeated the Neptune High sixteen to three (16-3). The game was played in a very see-saw fashion in which neither team was sure of winning.

The next game was with Phillipsburg, a strong and experienced team. For the second consecutive year the two teams have met, and battled to a scoreless tie.

The second league game was played with Dickinson, and again the Red and Blue proved to be the winner, with a score of 7-0. This game furnished plenty of thrills, and due to the sixty yard run of Hodge, East Orange came out victorious.

The game with Plainfield was a fatal one for East Orange. The visiting team took home the honors with the score of fifteen to six (15-6).

On November 25 came the fatal Championship game with Barringer at Ashland Stadium, before the largest crowd ever packed in the field. Although the score was fourteen to three (14-3), the outcome was in doubt until the final whistle had blown. Shortly after the opening play, East Orange drew first blood with a drop kick, netting the only score for the first half. The second half opened with much straight football; and then, suddenly the breaks went against East Orange, and Barringer scored two touchdowns.

One of the features of the game was the fine playing of Homer Berger, who later received the honor of being placed on the "All State" team.

BASKETBALL TEAM

Basketball

HE Red and Blue quintet enjoyed a successful 1927 season. A new team was built up around Captain Wynne, and this combination fared better than did last year's team.

East Orange lost to Dickinson in the opening game 33-28. This was no more than had been expected, since Dickinson had a strong team and was playing on its own court.

The Red and Blue then journeyed to Orange and defeated the neighboring five in a fast overtime game, 21-20. Percy Lucas was the main factor in the winning of this game. His foul in the extra period gave East Orange the game.

This winning streak was prolonged by a victory over West Orange High on the E. O. H. S. court. The team played the first three games without the assistance of Coach Benatre who was ill. Mr. Griffin filled in very nobly.

The second defeat was at the hands of Columbia High School of South Orange. The final score was 20-13. This game was played away from home in the low "gym" of the Villagers. Next year's team will not have to play there, because the new High school will have been completed by that time.

East Orange nearly lost the next game to Kearny. Kearny was leading 14-6 at half time. East Orange made up this handicap in the second half and came home with the game.

For the third consecutive year, Montclair defeated the Red and Blue on the Mountaineers' home court. Fred Sharp demonstrated his ability in this game by sinking a basket from a distance of more than half the length of the court.

Another game was lost to Hackensack in the Hackensack Armory, 29-26. The East Orange boys turned in one of the season's best games, but the home team was too strong for them.

Orange came to East Orange for the return game, and went away defeated, 19-17. The guards, Berger and Sharp, were the outstanding stars of the fray.

The Red and Blue was the winner of the next game in which the contestants were East Orange and West Orange. East Orange staged another second half comeback. The West Orange aggregation was leading 12-7 at the end of the first half; but, with the aid of Art Wynne's thirteen points in the second half, East Orange won the game.

The second Kearny game was a repetition of the first. Kearny led at half time, 17-4. The Red and Blue rallied to their colors and came back strong in the second half to win 25-22.

The second game with Dickinson was also played without the advice of the regular coach. The Maroon took the East Orange boys into camp and returned to Jersey City, victors by reason of a 20-16 score.

East Orange High School was avenged against Montclair in their second encounter by a 33-9 score. As a result of the able guarding of Sharp and Berger, the Mountaineers scored only a single point during the second half.

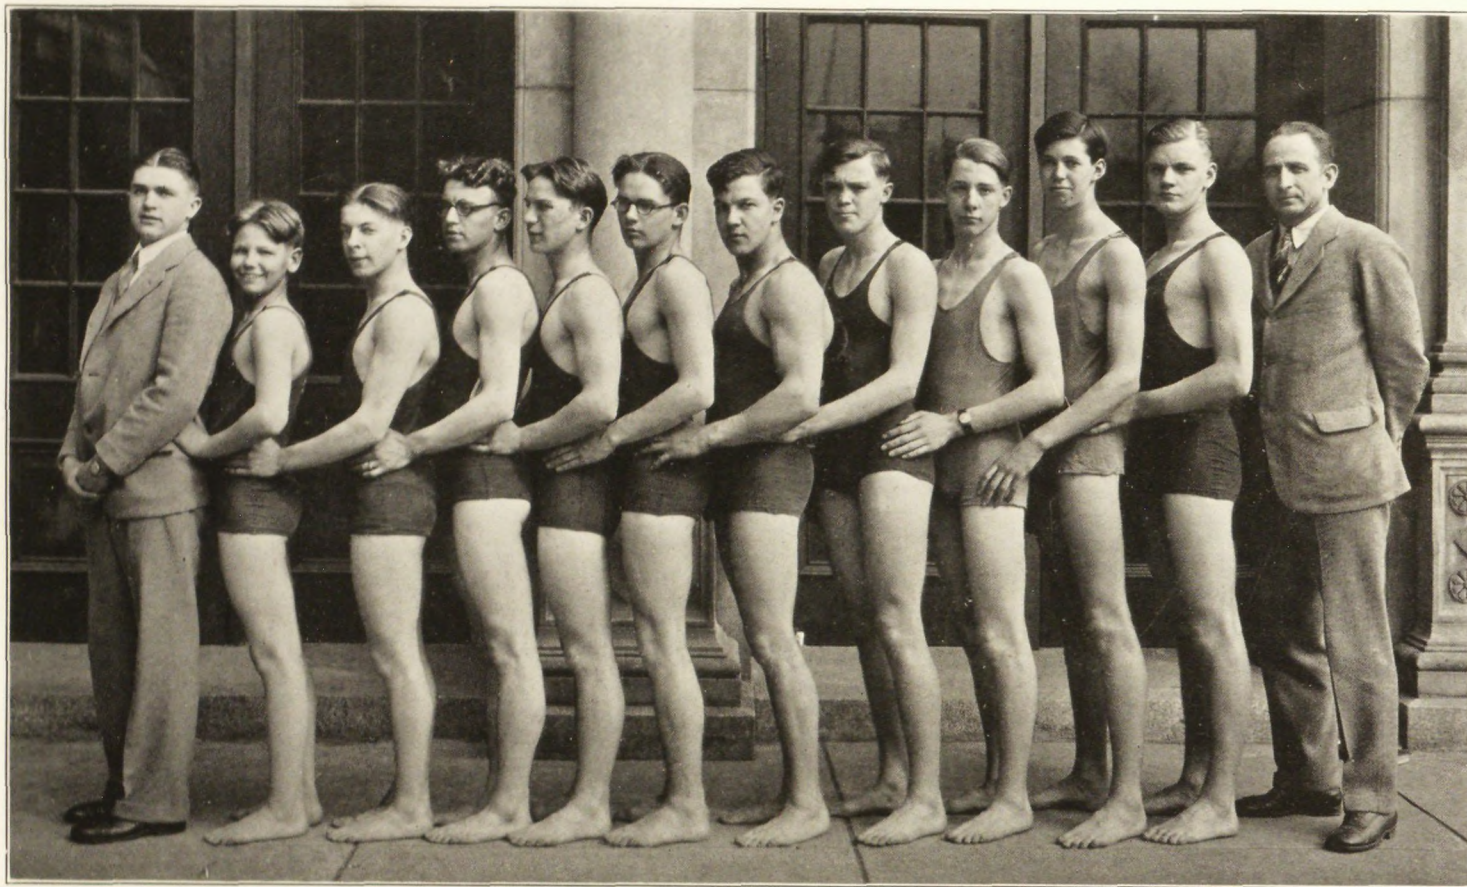

East Orange closed the regular season in an uneventful game with Plainfield. East Orange won a 16-11 decision.

The High School five defeated the Alumni quintet on March 2 by the close score of 24-23. Chip Lawson, substituting for Al Kynor, sank a foul in the last minute of play, winning the game.

East Orange fared the same in the State Tournament as it did in the two previous years. The Red and Blue was pitted against the Red and Gray of Bloomfield. East Orange started the scoring and ran up five points before Bloomfield got started. Bloomfield then jumped into the lead and led 19-7 at half time. East Orange then staged a second half rally which fell short by two points of winning the game. Bloomfield went into the second round of the tournament with the memory of a 26-24 victory over the East Orangeites.

Every man on the first squad received his letter. Only one letterman, Ken Smith, returns to school next year.

There was no election of Captain, because it was thought best to let next year's squad elect their leader. Winslow Smith was elected assistant manager for next season. Charles Byrnes will be manager.

SWIMMING TEAM

Swimming

THE East Orange Swimming Team had its second very successful season this year, winning all but one dual meet, and placing second in the New Jersey State Championships. This is the second year that the high school has had an organized team, and in that time we have turned out a championship group of swimmers.

The first meet on the schedule was held at Morristown. This proved an easy victory for the Red and Blue representatives, for the score was 43-19. The team next met Plainfield at that city. This contest also was a victory for the E. O. team with a 41-18 score. Barringer was defeated with little effort in the Y. M. H. A. at Newark by 40-22. The next meet was with Pingry Prep. This is the only meet that the Red and Blue team has lost since its organization. The team was, however, seriously handicapped, for "Bill" Davis, the best sprinter; "Al" Weisgerber, the stellar diver; and "Stan" Bird, a reliable forty yard man, were unable to compete. In spite of this, the final score was close, 32-27. With these swimmers in the line up, we would, no doubt, have defeated the Pingry men decisively.

After these meets the E. O. team began on its home series. The opening meet was with Plainfield. This meet, along with the Morristown meet which followed, singularly showed the power of the Red and Blue team, for the only points the opposing teams secured were the third places in all but one event in each meet.

The last home meet before the Rutgers Interscholastic Open Meet was with Barringer. This contest was also an easy victory for the E. O. swimmers. The score was 39-11.

Coach Griffin entered the East Orange team in the Rutgers interscholastic Open Championships, in which the national high school champions, Wilmington H. S.; De Witt Clinton, the noted New York team; and Tome School competed. East Orange placed fourth in this meet—a very creditable showing against teams of national reputation.

A week after the New Brunswick meet the state contest was held at Trenton. Through a costly piece of misfortune in the relay event, the E. O. team was just nosed out of the championship of the state by the champions of the previous year, Atlantic City.

The members of the team deserve much credit for their work in training. All during the season Weisgerber, Bird, D. Smith, Walsh, and Smalley have been making good time in the sprints; while Weisgerber and Ashley have exhibited excellent form in diving. Davis and C. Smith have won the two hundred swim consistently. Koch, the captain, and Freeman are a breast and back stroke combination that can not be duplicated in New Jersey high schools.

The E. O. points in the state championships were accounted for by: Davis (10 points), who won the state championship in the 100 and 200 yard dashes; Freeman (4 points), who placed second in breast stroke and fourth in back stroke; Chalmers (3 points), who placed second in the two hundred yard swim; Koch (1 point), who placed fourth in breast stroke; D. Smith (1 point), who placed fourth in the forty yard swim; relay team (6 points), which consisted of Chalmers, D. Smith, Weisgerber, Davis.

THE East Orange High School soccer team had a very successful season. We played a schedule of nine games, winning four, losing two, and tying three.

After many weeks of diligent practising under the watchful eye of the coach, the team journeyed to Montclair for the first game. East Orange had little difficulty in this game, vanquishing Montclair two to nothing. The next game was with Kearny on their home grounds. In this game, the East Orange team met one of the strongest teams in the state, and although we played well, Kearny won three to nothing. Barringer was next on our schedule. Both teams battled hard, but the game ended in a scoreless tie. East Orange should have won this game, however, because the boys missed many easy chances to score.

Dickinson was the next opponent. They held our boys to a one to one score. The game was played on a bitter cold day, hampering to some extent the playing of the teams. Verona High, with a very green team, came to our field next and was defeated five to nothing. Montclair came down for a return game with a rejuvenated team and trimmed us one to nothing. Barringer in a return game, was trimmed three to nothing. In the next to the last game of the season, the East Orange High team went to Branch Brook Park to meet the highly touted St. Benedict team. Displaying the best form of the season, our boys trimmed the Benedicts' eleven five to one. In the last game of the season, East Orange met Dickinson and played them to a scoreless tie.

At the close of the season the following men received varsity letters: Captain Alan Kynor, Arthur Wynne, "Bus" Steinberg, Joe Deliduka, Jim Langley, Arnold Hotaling, Fred Astley, Fred Hunter, Milton Katz, Ken Germaine, and James Turbyne.

Girls' Hockey

QUICK response was registered to last season's call for candidates for the four class hockey teams. Never before had there been so many girls out for class hockey. Practice was held twice a week at Columbian oval, and under the careful coaching of the instructor, Miss Leinonen, good teamwork was developed. After several hard practices, each class team was formed, and a schedule of games arranged. Each team played the other three teams. The senior class team emerged victorious from all three contests, and was awarded small E. O.s as a reward.

Of the other classes, the freshman showed up best. Their team work was very good and was mainly responsible for their finishing second in the league. Motion pictures of the games were shown at the Strand Theatre.

Although this season was very successful, next year should be much more so, because hockey is becoming more and more popular in the schools. Perhaps inter-school contests can be arranged.

Girls' Basketball

TODAY, basketball plays the same important part in a girl's life as football does in a boy's. There is the same thrill and excitement in clean competition, in skillful playing, and in good sportsmanship. After an invigorating romp on the floor with friends of a kindred spirit, there is the quiet and happy satisfaction of having spent an hour of recreation to the best advantage. This year many girls felt the urge of a polished floor and a pigskin sphere and answered Miss Wheelock's call for volunteers.

The season started in December; and, after a month of practice and getting into shape, the series began between the Red and Blue teams. The Red and Blues of each class met in competitive games on the days appointed for class practice. At the end of a month, the series ended and the scores were tabulated. The result was practically a walk away for the Blues, who held a victory in three classes; Senior, Junior, and Freshman; and a tie with the Reds in the Sophomore class.

Amidst a wave of rivalry and enthusiasm the big event of the season started—the class series. The games were fast, furious, and exciting, well spiced with crises and comedy, and characterized by good team work and fair play. The Seniors, as is the habit with these superior beings, ran away with the title and the flashy E.O.'s; but the other teams showed a marked excellency and a noble spirit. The results of the games were:

Senior, 41—Freshman, 8	Junior, 35—Sophomore, 26

The seniors were led by an able and inspiring captain, Marjorie Taylor. Those who received letters were Elizabeth Becker, Peggy March, and Mildred Beers, forwards; Mildred Vanderhoof, Kitty Dolan, Helen Mathias, and Mary Jacoby, centers; and Jesse McLaren, Bernice Fox, and Marjorie Taylor, guards.

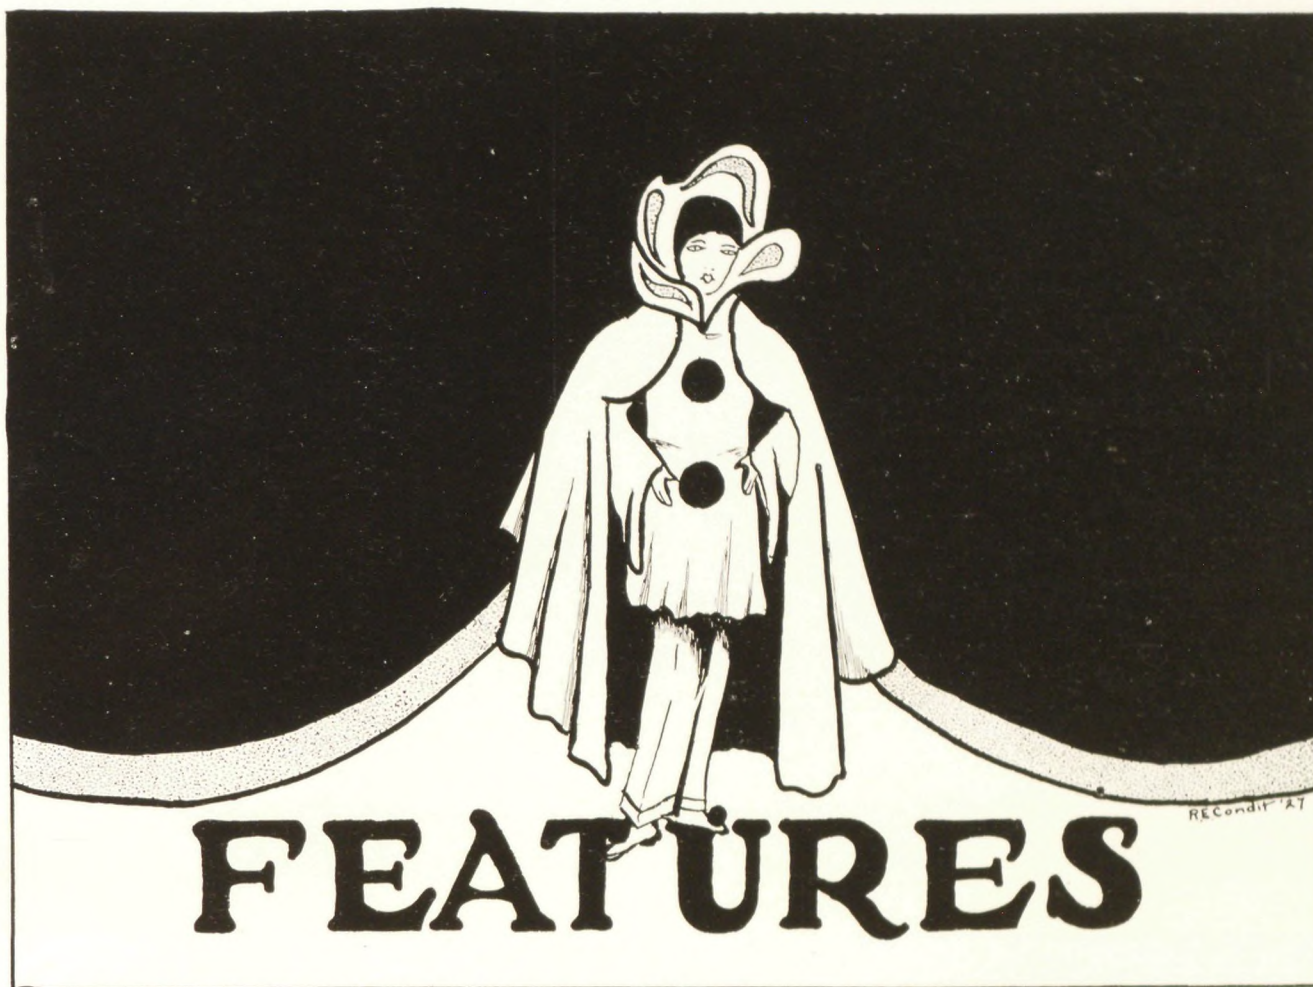

Near the end of the season, the seniors challenged the faculty. The challenge was answered and certain juniors are glad that there is still some one alive who can put the seniors in their place. The faculty won by a singleton.

It was hard to end such an exciting and successful season; but the sunny spring days brought memories of out-fielders and flies, so the high school Amazons deserted the gym for a well-beaten diamond.

The Printed Word!

WHEN Guttenberg invented the first movable types, the cause of education received its greatest impetus. All the colleges of the world owe their efficacy to the printed word. It is the bulwark of learning, and the greatest asset to the modern university.

But the educational value of the printed word does not cease with the diploma. Through printing, people are influenced in their social and business lives. Printed advertising teaches us to enjoy the comforts of civilization. We buy automobiles, radios, washing machines good clothes, and good food through the appeal of the printed word.

Leaving college, every graduate has something to sell to the world. It may be a manufactured product, or it may be professional service. All of this will require the help of the printing press. When you need the aid of printing, go to the man who has been graduated from the school of experience. Colyer puts personality into your printing.

IF YOUTH BUT KNEW!

"Poverty," an old proverb declares, "would be a fable, if youth but knew and age were able."

There is sound advice in this couplet. It means that if youth, robust and capable, were to acquire protection thus early in life, the possible reverses of old age would be provided against.

If this is not done, the old man may find himself unable to struggle against adversity, with no possession at his command other than vain and valueless regrets.

There is one advantage in acquiring an Endowment Life Insurance Policy as early as possible which is almost as important as the benefit to be gained when it matures. It is in youth that the maximum of protection may be had for the lowest cost.
