OF THE

EAST ORANGE HIGH SCHOOL

DEDICATES THIS SYLLABUS FOR THE YEAR 1928

ALMA MATER

O home of all our high school days,
When we have left these walls,
Thy name will ne'er in mem'ry's haze,
Be lost beyond recall.
Come students, friends, and classmates all,
Come join us in the song,
And make the echoes of this hall
Ring out with praises strong.

The passing years shall bring thee fame,
The world thy praise shall know,
More noble still shall be thy name
As far and wide we go;
The Red and Blue so dear, so true
Will never, never fail
But be led on the ages through
To glory—Hail! all hail!

CHORUS

Alma Mater glorious,
Dear Old Red and Blue
Hearty voices uniting
Pledge devotion true.
Louder still and louder
Swell the song and cry,
Hail our Alma Mater,
Old East Orange High.

FOREWORD

AS WE commence our journey upon the high road of life which leads on to our unknown destinations, we hesitate for a moment and gaze with reluctant eyes upon the swiftly closing portals of our early youth. Behind us, quietly slipping into the realm of the shadowy past, are our schooldays with their joys, their sorrows, their triumphs, and their friendships. Before us is the future, holding forth its golden opportunities, its strange experiences, its new interests, and its new friends.

In order that the days which we have so happily spent in East Orange High School may not be forgotten in the turmoil of the coming years, this book is given to us to cherish. Within its covers are bound memories which cannot be erased, associations which cannot be broken, and faces that will never be forgotten. Into its pages is woven the spirit of our class in the hope that we may remember that the years which we spent in East Orange were among the best, the fullest, and the happiest years of our lives.

THOMAS J. KELLY

KATHRYN LEWIS

IN MEMORY OF ELIZABETH RUTH WEBER

It was our privilege to have her as our associate for three brief years, to have the brightness of her presence always with us. Her friends were legion, they were permanent, and she had truly earned them.

A great soul, a charming companion, and a warm friend we always knew her, and we join our sorrow with that of her kin in mourning the absence of our classmate.

IN MEMORY OF CHARLES ERWIN SPELLMEYER

Ernest, ambitious, and quiet, he always put the best he had into all his work. In the few short years that he was with us he made many friends, and his death is deeply mourned by all his classmates.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

PERSONS or groups are remembered, if at all, for some outstanding quality or accomplishment; few rise to take their places in the Hall of Fame because of all-round ability. Thus it is that the Class of '28 shall be remembered, for the establishment of self-government in the East Orange High School as its distinct contribution to the life of Alma Mater.

In the fall of 1924, when the present senior class entered this institution, the project of self-government had its beginning. Student control in senior study halls had proved unsatisfactory for several years. Yet it was thought, and justly so, that such a plan could be carried out if its administrators were educated in its fundamentals from the time of their entrance into the school. Freshmen acted as chairmen for the study halls, and the immediate success clearly showed our executive ability and adaptability in managing a new phase of school life.

The next autumn saw the second step in student government—a judicial department to supplement the work of the study hall supervisors, who corresponded to the police. The judicial organization was known as the Student Court, a body of appointed judges vested with the power of trying cases and of deciding upon suitable punishment for those convicted of infringing upon school laws. A year's experience greatly improved the supervision of study halls during this period, and at the same time the incoming freshmen became familiar with the principles of this new plan to encourage school citizenship. Although the Corridor Patrol had existed for some years, its association with student control gave it added power and importance. Each home room elected a representative number of pupils, from which study hall chairmen and assistants were chosen. These were organized into the Class Councils, legislative bodies with law-making power.

The third and fourth years were devoted to the improvement of an already creditable organization and to the installing of the proper spirit and attitude in the lower classmen. Student government, as practiced by East Orange High School pupils, has attracted wide attention and liberal commendation. Faculty members and students alike have visited our school to see the plan in operation, with the result that many schools have undertaken a similar scheme or improved their own. It is only just that due credit should be given to Mr. Knight for his untiring efforts to make student government a success and a credit to the Class of '28.

A history of the senior class should not, however, be considered as the chronicle of one particular organization. Ancient tradition and reputation, both athletic and scholastic, have been zealously guarded; and with all seriousness, we believe we have attained a level at least equal to that of past senior classes.

The present senior class has contributed a large percentage of varsity players to all athletic teams, beginning with the success of several individuals in their sophomore year. Although there are no outstandingly brilliant athletes, each one is a great credit to a spirit of team work and helpful co-operation.

Social functions should receive their share of praise, for each has added considerably to the enjoyment and benefit of school life. The Junior-Senior Prom was patronized by the Class of '28 throughout its four years in school, and no small measure of its success may be attributed to our support. The successful management in the past two years of the annual dance was also due to members of 1928. The committee dances reached their zenith on February 27, 1928, when the Social Committee promoted a Leap Year Dance. This year in particular the Mother and Daughter Dinner showed the result of the whole-hearted efforts of the girls. All clubs were admirably supported; the Engineering Club and the Dagger and Masque Club were organized principally by our class.

It is interesting to note that the senior class deviated from the usual trend in scholastic matters. For the first time in many years, not only has a boy attained highest honors for the four years' work, but a boy also holds the next position on the Honor Roll. Furthermore, prominent universities all over the country have this year's graduates enrolled for admission in 1928.

Dramatic ability has been particularly plentiful, resulting in better productions for the large audiences which invariably witnessed them. Senior Dramatics and the Operetta have set a high standard for succeeding classes to follow, while the plays which were given from time to time were of equally high quality. The orchestra, largely composed of seniors, enjoyed an especially successful season this past year. Those who attended the Spring Concert and the State Teachers' Convention were very fortunate, and patrons of various theatres, where the musicians entertained, were very appreciative of our well-trained group.

Many seniors gained noteworthy ranks in debating; in fact, during the past four years East Orange teams and individuals have displayed great ability. In looking over the representatives of the school in contests with other schools, it is interesting to note the names of a great many students of this class. Several individuals have received recognition, one pupil advancing to the State finals in the New York Times Contest, and another being awarded a place in the contest sponsored by the New Jersey College for Women. In the Chamber of Commerce programs and in the Welfare Federation drives, we have given our assistance.

Looking back over a four-year period in our high school history, we see much of which we may be proud, and it is our sincere hope that in the history of our lives we may conduct ourselves in the same creditable manner. RUSSELL SMITH, '28.

HISTORY OF THE JUNIOR CLASS

MANY classes have entered, passed through, and graduated from East Orange High School, leaving behind them just a list of names. Happily, however, there has at last arrived a class which will be remembered by all the faculty, student body, and alumni. "What class is that?" you ask. Why, of course, the Class of 1929.

We, the Class of '29, first came to this school three years ago, innocent and unsophisticated. The cruel and heartless sophomores took our seats in study hall, sold us seats in chapel, and sent us to look for the elevator. We were victimized as yearlings usually are, by every ruse and trick the sophs played on us. But were we discouraged? No, of course not; we were merely showing the sophomores how little we thought of their childish quips and pranks. We were saving up our unlimited energy for more important work.

This work came when we were called upon to show the boasting sophomores that we, also, were capable of taking care of ourselves in that famous institution known as student government. We added to this system a court for the judging of culprits, and a system for the taking of attendance in study hall. The Debating Club that was organized was the first to be recognized by the Student Council. The competent debaters of our class showed great form in beating the sophomores. In athletics, too, our class came to the foreground. One of our number is responsible for the re-instatement of inter-class hockey; many others of our number formed the nucleus of last year's football team. We were indeed a surprisingly competent freshman class.

In the fall, our return was anticipated eagerly. Everyone knew that the Class of '29 would not fail as sophomores when it had succeeded as freshman. One of our number began the year by being elected Chief Justice of the Student Court. This was proper distinction! We now began in earnest to lend our support to the various organizations which welcomed sophomores. The Drama Study Club asked several of our classmates to aid them in the prize health play. Everywhere could be seen the influence of '29. After having taken an important part in football, basketball, swimming, soccer, and baseball, members of the sophomore class broke two records in track events. Sophomore voices were heard in the glee clubs, and one sophomore played a leading part in the operetta given by that organization. We were talented as well as efficient. Once more '29 was successful in the freshman-sophomore debate, as well as in interscholastic debates. Thus we ended our second year with a record behind us to astonish our predecessors and stimulate our successors.

Now we have definitely entered that marvelous group known as the upper classes. We are juniors and are about to take our proper place as leaders of the school. As juniors, we have not ceased to maintain our previous record. We strut about the corridors proudly, flaunting C. P. pins in the faces of the lower classmen. We hand our summons with the ease of natural born policemen. We act, as in the Christmas Play, easily and well. We excel in all athletics and sports. Our name is a synonym for success. The clubs and organizations consider us invaluable. As orators, we still retain our prominence; the most forceful and convincing debaters are juniors; juniors speak before club after club. In social activities, we are also brilliant; committee dances are attended in large numbers by juniors.

In short, but one more year remains for this remarkable and unusual class of 1929, but in that one short year the class promises sincerely to accomplish all that is humanly possible. We will finish successfully the work which we and other classes have begun, we will perform our senior duties conscientiously, we will uphold all standards and traditions of East Orange High School, and will leave behind us an unblemished record of our four years in high school.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

THE Class of 1930 entered East Orange High School, thinking that all looked bright and sunny. We soon found that all was not sunshine, for we learned that East Orange High School was a place for workers.

The sophomore class started off with enthusiasm last year. A large number of the students who received emblems for the various activities of the school were sophomores; seven of this class received letters for scholarship.

Mr. Grosenbaugh said that his part of the sophomore class tackled "Caesar" as well as, if not better than any other class. He gives the new Latin books credit for this—but—

The members of the sophomore council carried on their respective duties in a very efficient manner. Being secretary of a large study hall was not so pleasant at the beginning of the year, but by Christmas, the council could handle the supplementary list with ease. Many sophomores acted as assistant chairmen and proved to be very capable ones. They let no talkers escape their ever-ready eyes. The sophomore class also had a part in the new plan of student government.

The Class of 1930 excelled in athletics. The supervisors of the girls' gymnasium work have said that they wish the other three classes had the sportsmanship and team-play that the sophomore girls display. The girls of 1930 are among the best that have entered East Orange High School. It would be difficult to name all the activities in which the sophomore girls excel. One girl, who knew nothing about swimming or diving when she entered our high school, is now placed among the school's best swimmers and divers. We have many girls who not only excel in one feat, but are proficient in all sports. The sophomores are famous for their swimming, basketball, baseball, and hockey. A sophomore girl is captain of the basketball team and another, captain of the hockey team. When these girls become seniors, much will be expected of them.

The sophomore boys are also deserving of attention. Do you recall those autumn days when a certain sophomore boy rushed down the field and scored more than one touch-down for the anxious East Orange onlookers. More than one sophomore scored for East Orange in football. One of these boys made his letters not only in football but also in basketball. Another sophomore, known for his swimming, is the State champion in the two-hundred yard free-style. Second to him is another sophomore. Still another member of our class is recognized for his hundred-yard dash, and another for his hurdling.

Don't say that we brag; we speak merely as sophomores! When we start telling of our greatness, we forget ourselves and ramble on and on. Sophomores are noted for their conceit, but we all may be conceited at one time or other.

We knew what we were doing when we brought our diagrams, printed by our big brothers and sisters, so that we freshmen might find our way around this huge building. We went to the basement thinking we had been on the second floor, but now we know every nook and corner of this school, from infirmary to—Mr. File's office.

The outlook for the coming year is rosy. Yes, the stars speak well for us, and we have made a flying start toward being real supporters of good old East Orange High. You may well expect to hear more from us.

FRESHMAN CLASS

THE Class of 1931 has just completed its first year at East Orange. A more loyal and enthusiastic group has never before entered the institution.

Shortly after school opened in the fall, the Freshman Council was elected and took its place in cooperative government.

We gave hearty support to athletics. Several boys made the football and basketball squads. In girls' sports the Class of '31 was very much in evidence. In the hockey and basketball leagues the opposition and competition displayed by the freshmen were indeed noteworthy.

The Freshman Debating Club has developed several debaters of promise. We hope to be successful in the annual debate with the sophomores.

Indeed, this year's Freshman Class is probably one of the most active that has ever entered the High School. The school need not fear that, when the upper classmen leave us, the Class of '31 will not be able to fill their places and carry on, with efficiency, the work which they have begun.

THE STUDENT COUNCIL

RICHARD FOWLER
 FREDERICK PORTER
 VIVIEN BARRETT
 MR. CALDWELL

President
Vice-President
Secretary
Treasurer

THE Student Council has just finished one of the most successful years in the history of the school. Parliamentary procedure was near perfection; attendance was excellent. One amendment was added to the constitution. This amendment provided for an auditorium squad which maintained order during the assembly period. The amendment was drawn up and offered by Alfred Guest and Robert Daly. During the Student Government Convention, the members of the council helped to entertain and inform our visitors.

For the first time in the history of the school, the student is in close contact with the Student Council. On the Friday following each council meeting, a discussion is held in each homeroom on the business transacted at that meeting. In this way the Student Council can obtain a consensus of opinion and act accordingly. Surely, this has been a favorable year for student government.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Among the many things of which we, the students of East Orange High School, may be proud, student government should stand first. We may justly boast of our system, for is it not one of the most complete to be found in any high school of the state? Every one of us, whether he be a dignified, sophisticated senior or a timid freshman, has had his part in making student government a success. Some of us may be stern chairmen; others, merely diligent students in a vast study hall; but we have all contributed. We treat this subject, therefore, with profound respect and overwhelming pride.

We seniors, however, may be most proud. Did we not, as freshmen, make the first successful attempt to govern ourselves? Did we not first learn to keep our minds on Latin and French when we were free from the supervision of an eagle-eyed teacher? Perhaps we boast, but whether we do so or not, we shall willingly admit that we think that we have done well.

Do you remember the day when we sat huddled in the chapel five hundred frightened children? Mr. Knight stood up and explained the plan for student government. Did you not grow three inches and add five years to your tender age when he said that we, the Class of 1928, were to try student government? We grew even more and became almost too puffed-up to be bearable when we found that we had successfully carried on, we freshmen, what the seniors had failed to accomplish. Yes, it had been tried before by the stately, dignified seniors. It worked a sad miracle, however, a strange miracle. It changed those dignified seniors into boisterous children; teachers clasped their hands in dismay, and many remarks were made about the irresponsibility of modern youth. Before the talking became too general, some brave soul spoke up and said, "I move we discontinue student government." Everybody in one voice agreed, and the eagle-eyed teachers were once more supreme.

Did we say everybody agreed? May we correct ourselves? There were a few progressive members of the faculty who got together and tried to devise a new and better system. To these we owe everything. Most of all we are indebted to Mr. Knight. This justly popular teacher took upon himself the task of making student government successful and proved to be the fairy godfather and the good angel of the whole plan. It was he who guided us over the biggest obstacles; it was he who encouraged us to keep at it when things looked particularly cheerless. Although we seniors may proudly boast of being the first class to carry on student government successfully, we realize perfectly that our efforts would have been of no avail without the sympathetic guidance of Mr. Lewis B. Knight and Mr. John T. Hubbard.

Now for a more careful consideration of student government. You have all had community civics, have you not? Did you make one of those weird diagrams about the Government of the United States or of East Orange? Maybe you never understood the diagrams, but did you not think they were fun? You make a rectangle. You draw a few lines wherever you think they look best, and when you have them a length to suit your fancy, you put some more rectangles on the ends. You may keep doing that indefinitely. On the other hand, you may have some system to your drawing. It all depends on the mood you are in when you start to do the work. One thing is important—that the key-note of the whole system be placed in the first little box. If we were making one of those diagrams on our wonderful student government, in that first square would go the East Orange High School Association, or what is more commonly known as the General Organization. Maybe you thought that this was merely something you joined so that you would have something to put under your name in the Syllabus, or something to which you paid a quarter just because it was the thing to do. But it is more than that. Those quarters you gave pay the expenses of all the many clubs and teams in the school. One must be a member of the General Organization to belong to anything else in the school, or to vote in the annual election. Your twenty-five cents is, therefore, well spent. The General Organization has three officers elected by the entire school; a president, a vice-president, and a secretary. The all-important office of treasurer is held by Mr. Caldwell. The officers also act as the officers of the Student Council.

All of this safely brings us to that worthy and learned body, the Student Council. In the hands of its members rests the government of the entire student body. Although student supervision in study halls is but four years old, for about eleven years we have had a Student Council. This council is actually the governing body of the General Organization and is a union of the various clubs and classes in the school. Somewhere else in this Syllabus someone has spoken of the great accomplishments of this organization, but let us also mention one or two in passing. The auditorium squad, the newest addition to student government was created this year by the council. The Dagger and Masque Club has been admitted to membership. The meeting place has been changed from room 224 to the library. Pictures of last year's class councils have been framed and hung. As all that, however, should not come under my topic, I shall hurry on.

The corridor patrol is one of the first and chief divisions under student government. The patrol is composed of a hundred or more brainy seniors and juniors who diligently watch the lunch lines and patrol the corridors during periods. Let us warn you never to attempt to slip down to Marten's during school hours, for surely some watchful member of the corridor patrol will get you and end your little scheme. The corridor patrol, under the able guidance of Mr. Davis, has for several years been working wonders. Let us hope it will continue to do so.

When one speaks of student government, he must surely include student supervision of study halls. That is a very involved plan; let me attempt to explain it to you. Early every fall, representatives are elected in every home room to the various class councils. Soon after this election, there is a big pow-wow in which the seniors impress upon the others their great superiority, and are made chairmen of the study halls; junior chairmen are also appointed; while to the sophomores goes the important work of keeping the attendance. If you do not think that is a difficult task, try it sometime. The freshmen act as general helpers, aiding the sophomores in taking the attendance and helping to keep order.

Mention must be made of the student court. Twenty-four judges, appointed by the student council, act as the judicial department of the school. Erring students are brought before these stern judges, and penalty hours are dealt out right and left. All miscreants in study hall or chapel, and any others who refuse to comply with the rules, must appear before their wiser classmates for punishment. The boys and girls each have a court of their own, with Chief-Justice Donald Lincoln in charge. The work of these learned judges deserves praise.

May we take the liberty of joining your congratulations with ours on the present success of student government in East Orange High School? Surely you, too, must be proud of it, very proud. As for the future, is it necessary for us to say how much we hope that student government may develop and be even more successful? You can easily imagine what we are all thinking. Classes of 1929, 1930, 1931 and all others which may follow, will you not enter into student government with your whole hearts and do your best to make it a complete success? Then Mr. Knight, and we, the Class of 1928, may be so very proud of you.

THE STUDENT COURT

DONALD LINCOLN
 ALFRED GUEST
 MARY HEISS

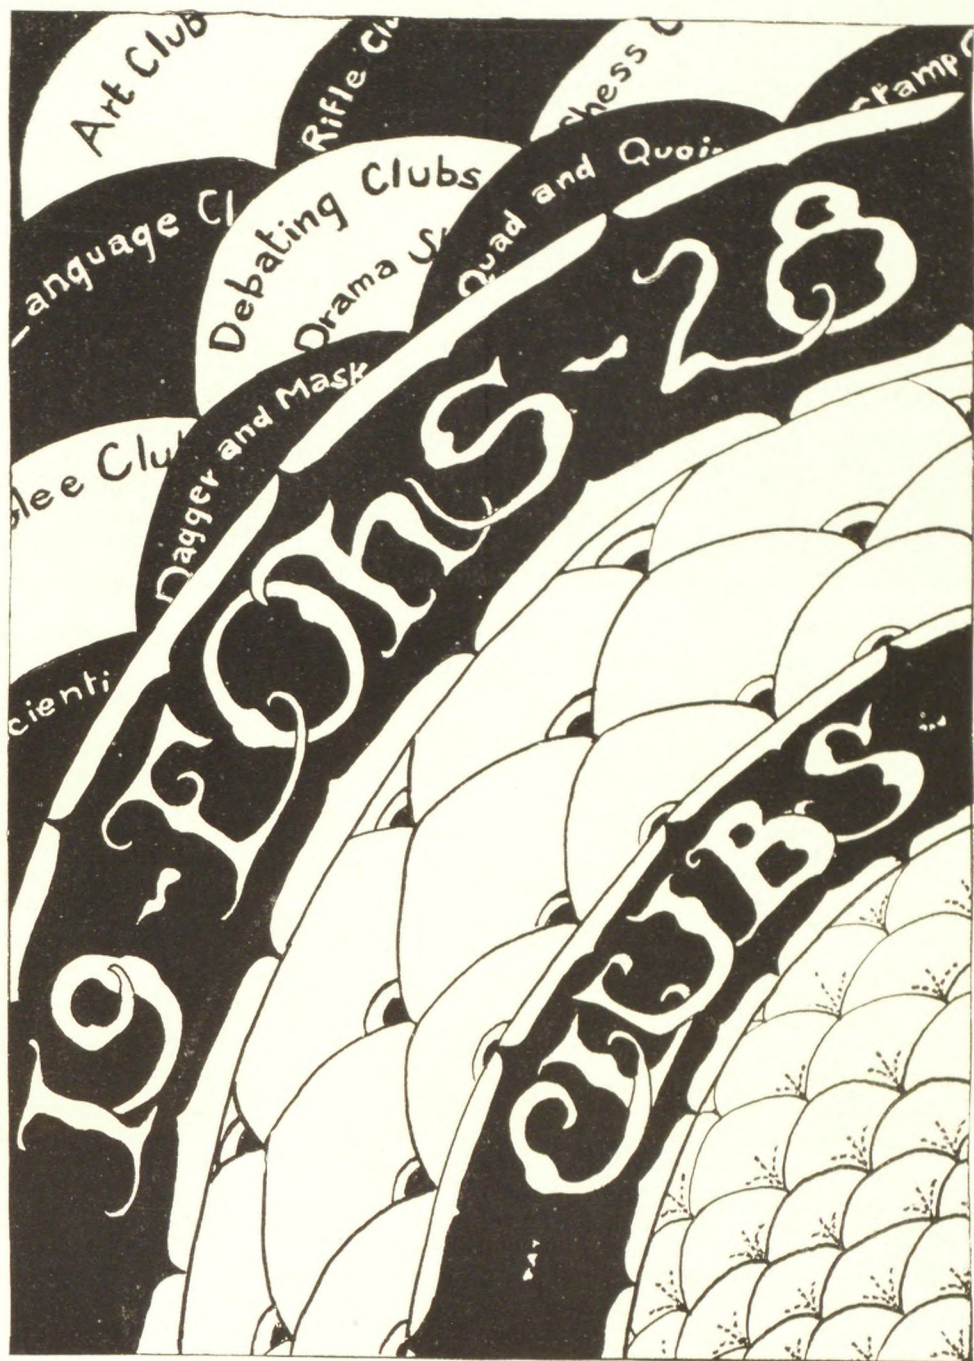

Chief Justice
Associate Justice
Associate Justice

THAT august judicial body, the Student Court of East Orange High School, under the guidance and advice of Mr. Knight, has just completed its third successful year. This part of student government is comparatively new in East Orange High School, and in fact in any high school in the country. It is, therefore, a body of which we can be justly proud.

In its first year, the court consisted of twelve members, six boys and six girls. This body convened in room 322 after school, and both boys and girls were tried in the same court. The cases were largely brought in by the corridor patrol. The study hall cases were disposed of by the freshman and sophomore courts.

Last year it was decided to eliminate the two lower courts. Six more members were added to the judiciary force and the present organization formed, with a total of eighteen judges. Every morning from eight-thirty to eight-forty-five the court convened. There were two courts, one for the boys and one for the girls. All of the cases arising in study halls and on the school grounds were quickly and justly tried and disposed of.

This year, with the past two years' experience as a background, an effort was made to have a more efficient court. In the beginning of the year, the court held a joint meeting, at which a chief justice was elected. At the same time, it was decided to elect two associate justices, one for each court, and to appoint a committee to formulate a code of penalties. At first there were a great many cases in the boys' division, but the stern hand of justice tightened; and the number of culprits was soon decreased. The court worked so efficiently for the remainder of the year that during this time there were actually two days in which neither court had any cases. At the end of the year the number of culprits naturally increased, but the court managed to retain its dignity and preserve order throughout the school.

MATHEMATICS CLUB

ELMER FISHER
PATRICIA FOWLER
WILLIAM HALL

President
Vice-President
Secretary

THIS year the Mathematics Club, under the leadership of Elmer Fisher, has been very successful in obtaining an increased number of members. The increase, no doubt, is due to very interesting programs which have been so arranged that topics related to mathematics, but supplementary to the regular class room work, might be explained and fully discussed.

The club is open to all seniors who are taking senior mathematics; and, as an award of honor, to all students of third year mathematics classes who have shown special aptitude in their work. In this way, all the students of the high school who have a mathematical turn of mind are brought together to discuss interesting problems and fallacies, and to learn something of higher mathematics.

QUAD AND QUOIN CLUB

MILLARD HALL
MR. F. R. PRICE

President

Faculty Adviser

The purpose of the Quad and Quoin Club is to supplement the regular course in printing, and to provide all those interested in this industry with an exceptional opportunity for practical and theoretical experience. The members of this organization are chosen from the best students of the printing classes.

This club demonstrates an interesting phase of its work in its annual calendar sale. The calendars are very attractive; almost all of the students buy them. The proceeds this year went to buy equipment for the club, and also a small motion picture machine.

The Quad and Quoin Club holds pie parties throughout the year. These are greatly enjoyed because of the quantity and quality of refreshments provided for the occasion.

The club prints all the posters, handbills, and other printed material needed in the school.

This has been a very successful year for the Quad and Quoin Club.

THE Girls' Debating Club of the East Orange High School has just passed through another successful season. For over twenty-five years this club has ranked among the school's most popular organizations. The aim of the club has been to promote efficiency, accuracy, and spontaneity in the art of public speaking; under the tutelage of Mr. Greenan, each member has, in some measure, attained this goal. Every Wednesday afternoon an eager group of girls assembles in 322 to set forth ideas on questions of interest. Club debates and discussions are followed by constructive criticisms from the various members. Finally, the faculty adviser himself corrects the faults of the speakers.

Among the main interests of the club are the interscholastic debates. They happen to have been three in number this year. At a joint meeting of the boys' and girls' clubs, the members try out for places on the teams. Then the two teams hold a practice debate before the combined clubs, as a preliminary to the competition with opponents from other schools. The first interscholastic debate, held in early December, was a triangular contest which brought together Montclair, South Side, and East Orange. The decision for the home debate was in favor of the East Orange team, but the contest at South Side was non-decision. The subject was, "Resolved: that credit toward graduation should be given for extra-curricular activities." In February an able team from Irvington debated the question of government ownership and operation of Muscle Shoals with an East Orange team. This also was a non-decision debate. The third debate held in April against South Side, concerned the abandonment of the Monroe Doctrine.

Besides these interscholastic debates the members of the club enter a number of other outside contests. Every year the New Jersey College for Women sponsors a contest open to high school girls. Rivera C. Ingle acquitted herself so well in the preliminaries that she was chosen to represent the high school in the district contest. After winning out here, she reached the finals held at the New Jersey College for Women. Rivera also represented the club in the Outlaw of War contest sponsored by a national committee. Last, but by no means least, of the outside contests was the annual New York Times Oratorical Contest. Although a number of the girls had expected to enter, Peggy Delaney was the only one actually to deliver her speech. During the annual Welfare Federation Drive of the Oranges and Maplewood, Peggy also spoke on its behalf before several local clubs and organizations interested in the welfare work. In fact, she spoke so well that she received a letter of appreciation for her efforts.

Of the work in the club itself, there is a great deal to be said. To begin with, any girl in the three upper classes is eligible for membership. For excellent speaking in the meetings and participation in interscholastic debates, points are awarded to the members. After two points have been acquired, the fortunate one is made a member of the honorary society of the club, Ken Mair, for which she receives a Ken Mair pin. For the more aspiring ones there are more goals to be attained, such as the guard for the pin. Several of the girls have obtained these; and the others, especially the juniors and sophomores, have worked hard in eager anticipation of the day when they will be able proudly to display a pin. When two Ken Mair members participate in the same club debate, the other participants have felt that they were handicapped and would not be able to win their Ken Mair points. For this reason it was decided that in such a case an extra award of a quarter of a point would be awarded to the third best speaker. Another important amendment to the constitution was made regarding the election of officers. Previously only Ken Mair members were eligible to office; but, under the new ruling, only girls who attend both seventh and eighth periods may hold office.

The most important event of the year was held in May. The annual Ken Mair-Delta Epsilon debate has always aroused a keen sense of rivalry between the two debating societies of the high school. The best speakers from each organization are picked to form the rival teams, and the decisions are necessarily close. This competition between the boys and girls is one of the most interesting features of the club work.

Of course, one of the most attractive features of the club is its social life. On November third, the first social of the term was held. A joint meeting was held in 322, during which the varsity teams in the first triangular debate delivered their speeches to an appreciative audience of fellow club-members. The group then adjourned to the teachers' lunch room for a good time. Among the many events was listed a pie-eating contest in which faculty and pupil participated with equal gusto. Evidently the boys had been practising for this contest previously, for the outcome was very close. Later, everyone found partners for bridge. Delectable refreshments were served by the committee, and dancing followed. The afternoon broke up with a dish-washing session. Later in the year the young ladies entertained their contemporaries of the opposite sex at a leap-year social. This was very interesting since the young ladies enjoyed nearly all the privileges that the gentlemen usually have. They were allowed to serve refreshments to their guests and to cut in on the dancing. It is hoped that the boys appreciated all the little attentions they received.

In conclusion it can be said that the members of the Girls' debating Club have been the kind who can, and will, mix work and play so as to obtain the best results. Thus it can be seen that the Girls' Debating Club surely upholds every standard established by the East Orange High School.

THE BOYS' DEBATING CLUB

ROBERT DALY
DONALD LINCOLN
AUBREY CHRISTOPHER
EDWARD STROCK

President
Vice-President
Vice-President
Secretary

ONE of the oldest and most active clubs in East Orange High School is the Boys' Debating Club. This June will mark the close of its thirtieth year, one of the most successful years in its history. There are two reasons why the club is a live and moving organization. Those who are well acquainted with the club and its programs point to its multitudes of activities, and to the fact that, even while the club is elective, its policy of dropping members who prove to be dead wood has kept the membership down to boys vitally interested in the work. Members of this character give considerable time and energy to club projects. Just why do boys belong to this club? They belong chiefly because the objectives which are picked out are nearly always accomplished. The club gives the boys training in the art of addressing audiences. It gives them an opportunity to develop poise and self possession. Furthermore, the meetings are interesting, peppy and worth attending. This is the answer to the question, "Why a Boys' Debating Club."

This year the activities of the club have been divided into two parts. Four inter-scholastic debates have been held with Irvington, Montclair, South Side and Summit. Against Montclair, Robert Daly and Aubrey Christopher were awarded a three to nothing decision. The other debates were non-decision, but the participants, Maurice Bernstein, Holloway Robinson, and Edward Strock all did credit to the club and school they represented. The other positions on the teams were held by members of the Girls' Club. Perhaps of greatest interest to the club itself and to the school at large is the Ken Mair Delta Epsilon debate. For the last five years in these inter-club debates, Delta Epsilon has had the distinction of being represented by a winning team, and the hopes for this year are as high as hopes should be.

Another equally important work has been that of supplying speakers for various public functions. In the Welfare Campaign last fall, Donald Lincoln and Edward C. Strock spoke at various centers in the community. Later, during the Red Cross Drive, Marshall Smith, Richard Knapp, John Morehouse, Aubrey Christopher and Robert Shapiro went to different clubs and did their bit toward putting this drive across. To a mass meeting entitled "Know Your Own Town Night," held last winter in Orange, each high school of Orange, West Orange, South Orange and East Orange sent a speaker to talk on the merits of their respective communities. East Orange was represented by Edward Strock. Four of the club members, Reginald Rader, John Morehouse, Joseph Grubstein, and Richard Knapp, gave a debate before a luncheon of the Rotary Club, on the subject, Resolved: That East Orange should adopt the city manager type of government.

Members attended and addressed two conventions during the year. Alfred Guest spoke on the student court, at a student government convention held in East Orange. Robert Daly spoke on the activities of the East Orange Chapter of the National Forensic League, at a convention of that organization held in Nutley. One very important part of each year's program is the series of contests which are opened to high school students. This year the club was represented in three of these, the National Oratorical Contest, the Outlawing of War Contest, sponsored by the National Committee for the Outlaw of War, and the Colgate Extemporaneous Speaking Contest, in each of which the honor of the club was ably upheld.

During the year, several joint meetings have been held with the Girls' Club, including two very successful socials, at which the tryouts for the several interscholastic debates were held. With the progress of the club itself has come a parallel growth of the two honorary debating societies, Delta Epsilon and the East Orange Chapter of the National Forensic League.

In conclusion, the Boys' Debating Club wishes to extend to the faculty adviser, Mr. John T. Greenan, its sincerest thanks and appreciation for the personal help he has given each individual member, and for the unstinting way in which he has devoted himself to the work and interests of the club as a whole during this past year.

LA SOCIEDAD ESPANOLA

WILLIAM PULLIN
 ALLEN SHAW
 JOSEPH CARBONELL
 MR. ROBERTS

President
Vice-President
Secretary
Faculty Adviser

LA SOCIEDAD ESPANOLA during the school year of 1927-28 enjoyed one of the most successful seasons in its history. Its primary purpose is to develop interest in Spanish and Spanish-speaking countries, and to give the students a chance to practice and learn more about the language. These aims were well accomplished by entertaining and instructive programs, and by the splendid cooperation and interest of the members of the organization. A number of novel activities were also introduced. Among these were the publication of the club paper, "El Toro," and the presentation of a program in assembly.

The club programs of the year were both beneficial and entertaining. A number of fine plays and sketches were produced. Several excellent educational talks were presented by the members and by Mr. Roberts, who described his visit to Colombia. The club is likewise indebted to Mr. Martinez, of New York, for his interesting and helpful lecture delivered in the spring. There were various musical programs rendered through the year, devoted to Spanish compositions presenting the gayer side of Spanish life. In these programs the club members learned many Spanish songs and frequently took part in singing them. In addition to these activities there were extemporaneous speaking contests, debates, and Spanish games. In all the meetings, Spanish was the language spoken.

The club held two socials during the year, both of which were great successes. Much of the credit for the excellent results of these activities was due to Mary Rutledge and Antoinette Fiorentino for their fine arrangement of the programs, and to the members for their contributions in making the affairs successful.

One of the most notable accomplishments of the club during the year was the presentation of a chapel program. This was in the form of a radio entertainment broadcast by the club, supposedly under the sponsorship of Los Hermanos Aromaticos, importers of Spanish onions, whose slogan was "In onions there is strength." The program presented a variety of enjoyable features. Several lively Spanish selections were played by the club orchestra, after which a group of songs were sung and a short sketch presented. A novel feature of the program was the performance of a graceful Spanish dance. The undertaking of presenting this program in assembly was very successful. It is hoped that others may follow in the future.

The school year of 1927-28 might well be called the "language year" in the history of East Orange High School, not only because of the great success of the language clubs during that time but also because of the advent of so many new activities. Besides the organization of the Latin Club and the presentation of chapel programs by the modern language clubs, there was one other great advance in the language department. The Spanish and French Clubs undertook a project hitherto untried and made of it a great success. This project was the publication of the two language papers, "El Toro" and "Le Coq Gaulois." Early in the year, after its organization, the Spanish Club began work on the production of "El Toro," the name chosen as appropriate because of its meaning "The Bull." The purpose of this paper was to develop interest in Spanish by acquainting the students with Spanish life and customs, and by creating entertainment and humor in the study of Spanish. As a result of the untiring efforts of the editors, Katherine Morgan, Allen Shaw, and William Pullin, and to the members of the club itself for their contributions, the publication was a complete success. Although the paper was by no means perfect in form, it nevertheless was a splendid attempt and has paved the way toward greater success in future years.

Two other activities of the club deserve special notice. These are the foreign correspondence undertaken by members of the club, and the contest conducted by La Prensa of New York and sponsored in East Orange High School by La Sociedad Espanola. During the year a number of foreign correspondents were communicated with by students of Spanish, the addresses having been received from a central international bureau. The correspondents were in all parts of the Spanish-speaking world, the majority, however, living in Chile, Costa Rica, and Colombia. In this way considerable beneficial and interesting correspondence was started, much of which will probably last a long time and prove very instructive. The other important activity, the LA PRENSA prize essay contest, was open to all students of Spanish, many of whom took advantage of the fine opportunity given and entered the contest in hope of winning one of the valuable prizes offered. This also proved very beneficial to those taking part.

The Spanish Club of 1927-28 has done splendid work in readjusting its organization and constitution and has set an excellent example for its future members in introducing new activities and entertaining programs. It now remains for these members to take up this work, improve it still further, and maintain the fine spirit that has kept the club alive and interesting.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS, because of a large number of active and interested members, has accomplished a great deal this year. The aim of the club is two-fold; to increase the members' knowledge of French, French life, and French customs, thereby enabling them to speak the language more fluently and more accurately; and to take up the more enjoyable phases of French, for which there is not time in the class room. Thus the club is both practical and enjoyable.

This year the French Club, at the suggestion of its faculty adviser, Miss Corse, has introduced a novelty in the form of a little French newspaper, LE COQ GAULOIS. The paper is edited and published entirely by the members of the club. It contains editorials, articles on events of interest, stories and notes on social, musical, dramatic, athletic, cinema and club affairs. In addition, there are amusing cartoons and French jokes. The publication has improved throughout the year and has become one of the main attractions of the club.

For its annual chapel program the club presented the amusing little comedy Anglais Tel Qu' on Le Parle or English as She is Spoken, which was given with so much vim and action that everyone understood it in spite of unfamiliarity with the language. It was the story of an interpreter in a French hotel who could not speak English, and who mixed up the love affair of a run-away couple. The combination of French and English afforded much amusement, and there were several hilarious entanglements to be straightened out before the play ended satisfactorily.

The club enjoyed the production of various French plays throughout the year, the presentation of "petites pieces," and stories and discourses in French. Singing programs flourished under the direction of Frederick Porter, and the club was entertained several times by piano and violin selections of French composition.

At various times during the year outside speakers addressed the club. Madame Devit, a French woman, who recently came to the United States, gave a most interesting and enlightening talk on French education and rearing, comparing the lives of the young people in France with those of the younger generation in the United States (much to the latter's advantage). Mrs. Dixon, editor of a French paper for French students, gave a most interesting talk on France.

In addition to these educational meetings, the club participated in its share of socials and parties. A Christmas party and a closing social at the end of the year called forth an unusually large club attendance. In May the club gave a dinner for the members; French food was partaken of with great enjoyment, French table manners used, and the French language volubly spoken. At all parties the members showed what a merry time can be had in a French way.

The French Club feels it has had a most successful year and hopes that in future years even bigger and better things may be accomplished.

THE ENGINEERING CLUB

LAST year fifteen science students got together and organized the Engineering Club. The object was to hold general discussions and demonstrations of numerous scientific subjects which could not be taken up in class because of the lack of time. The only requirements were that the student have an interest in science and that he take either physics or chemistry. The members showed interest in the project, and the club soon attracted attention. The result was that, by the end of their second year, the membership increased to thirty-five. The meetings were very well attended, and on several occasions the meeting room was crowded with visitors.

Many very interesting topics have been discussed, and many demonstrations have been enthusiastically received. The talks are educational, yet sufficiently non-technical to permit everybody to understand and profit by them. Numerous trips to nearby concerns have proved valuable as well as interesting. Most of the very fine programs have been presented by the members.

Mr. Marshall, the faculty adviser, has very generously given the club much of his time and energy. To his interest the success of the club is largely due. The program committee, consisting of the officers, with Laurence Rentschler as chairman, adopted the plan of presenting at least one demonstration at each meeting.

To show the wide field of topics covered, the following brief resume is given: Mr. Lottridge gave a most interesting talk on ornithology, illustrated with at least seventy-five stuffed birds. A naturalist, Mr. Lottridge was well able to give first hand information on the habits and breeding places of birds, as well as many of his own experiences. Mr. Marshall, at another time, carefully explained the construction and operation of the transit, at the same time discussing different methods of surveying. His talk, in accordance with our custom, was followed by a very interesting general discussion. At another meeting the mystery of the electron was pierced, one of the members giving the latest data on these minute particles. The moon and Mars were discussed by Allen Scattergood. Laurence Rentschler gave several liquid air demonstrations, when ingenious experiments were performed, such as shattering a tin pan as if it were glass, smashing a soft rubber ball as an egg, frying or rather freezing an egg, driving nails into wood with mercury hammers, and a dozen other experiments to show the extreme cold of liquid air.

At still another meeting William Hodge exhibited a small electric furnace, in which copper and brass were melted. The same speaker explained and demonstrated, with various pieces of apparatus and very accurate meters, how high temperatures are measured. Evolution, including Darwin's theory was discussed by George Zucker. Harold MacArt explained all about the functions of transmitting and receiving sets. He brought one of each to the club so as to be able the better to show their construction. Theories as to the formation of the universe were presented by Grom Hayes and Willard Eddy. Lightning arresters were described by one of the members. James Dennison gave a very interesting talk on the ruins of Pompeii. The photo electric cell and the glow relay were shown and demonstrated; the method by which they work, their uses, and their construction were pointed out. Laurence Rentschler showed this and a number of varieties of vacuum tubes to demonstrate and explain both the cathode and the canal rays, besides the discharges of a current under various pressures of gas. Last year it was decided to have the Engineering Club present a talk in both upper and lower class chapels. Accordingly a very interesting talk on astronomy was presented along with the liquid air demonstration.

Numerous trips have been taken to interesting nearby plants. Two of these were to the General Electric in Harrison. The club visited the Lighting Institute, where applications of the modern science of proper lighting in homes, places of business, streets, and aviation fields were exhibited. At another time the club went to the laboratories, where the laws of light were carefully demonstrated. Another interesting trip led to the Seaboard Coke Co. The Oakanite Wire Company, one of the largest in this section, was visited. The methods of making and drawing wire, from the thickness of a hair to the large diameters of big ocean cables proved very interesting. A trip to the Public Service was greatly enjoyed and was very valuable. The samples of ice cream at the Reid Ice Cream Plant proved very popular. The last trip to the Edison Company, where phonograph records are made, was interesting.

Of course, the social must not be omitted. The members will not forget it very quickly because of the vast quantity of food consumed. The day of the social was entirely turned over to recreation and science was momentarily forgotten. Games were played and everybody had an enjoyable time.

From the above list of activities, it is easy to see why the Engineering Club should be popular as well as instructive. It is the hope of the members that some day in the near future the club will grow to be the finest in the East Orange High School.

THE Stamp Club has just finished the most eventful year of its short history. The club, which boasts of one of the largest memberships in the school, is one of the few organizations that admit freshmen to their ranks.

This year the club was represented on the Student Council by its president. The philatelists held their annual social on February twenty-ninth, an auspicious date. It was a real boys' social as you may readily understand when you learn that each member who attended was served with two portions of ice cream and generous portions of cake and pie. These ample refreshments satisfied the cravings of even the hungriest collector. An interesting program, consisting of odd and unusual games, was arranged by the committee. One of the features was a list of twenty-five true and false statements prepared by Charles Riedell.

At the beginning of the the year a Mr. Kincaid of Ridgewood, New Jersey, donated over 2000 philatelic magazines from 1895 to date. These include copies of Meekeel's Weekly, Philatelic Gossip, Redfield's the Stamp Collectors' Magazine, and many others. These magazines form the nucleus of a club library.

The Stamp Club has been an exhibitor at the school's open night for the last two years. Exhibits were held in the library and excited much favorable comment.

Features of the meetings have been frequent auctions. These unique sales are conducted entirely by the members. A tax of 10% is collected from the dealer, and at the end of the year this is turned over to the General Organization. In this manner students are able to purchase stamps which they might not secure in any other way. The auctions have proved very successful and have aroused a great deal of interest.

During the last year the club was honored in having Mr. J. L. Jewett, former president of the Collectors' Club of the Oranges, as its guest speaker. Mr. Jewett gave an interesting talk and showed his superb collection of stamps from Gilbert and Ellice Islands. Several members also brought theirs to show to the club. Among those which were shown were the collection of Mr. Collins, Pryor Enke, Jr., and Charles Riedell.

At every meeting talks on subjects of general interest to the members are given. The club demands regular attendance and provides an appropriate penalty for its delinquents. Each program is preceded by a regular business meeting and followed by a trading session. The trading sessions are very spirited, and a great deal of business is transacted. Mr. Collins, the faculty adviser, offers many timely suggestions on how to collect intelligently. At the beginning of the year, it is often necessary to explain some of the rudiments of the collector's art to the newer members. By doing this, the club saves these people a great deal of money which they might otherwise spend on stamps about which they might not have all the facts.

This year various members tried an experiment in preparing grammar school students for future membership. A junior club was founded at the East Orange Library, and members of the high school club put on several interesting programs. Since there was lack of interest on the part of the grammar school pupils, the plan was dropped.

In the middle of the year the offices of secretary and vice-president were combined, and Thomas Wilson was elected to fill the office of collector, which was then vacant.

THE ART CLUB

MARJORIE MEYER
 RICHARD CONDIT
 MARGUERITE KANZAKI
 MISS DELLA M. HACKETT

President
Vice-President

ON MARCH 20, 1918, the Art Club of the East Orange High School, was formed for the purpose of purchasing a Liberty Bond of the third issue, and of promoting interest in art in the school. It was known for many years as the Camouflage Club. It began with a small group of twenty members; this year it boasts a membership of fifty or more students. The last few years have seen the Art Club advancing with great strides toward a status equal to some of the veteran clubs of our school, and for the first time it is having an account of its history recorded in the SYLLABUS.

The Art Club has made a practice each year of visiting the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and the Montclair and Newark Museums. There are always new and interesting exhibits each year, and these visits prove very valuable. We of the Art Club have also taken much interest in our visits to the New York School of Fine and Applied Art, which gives a great deal of information to those of our members planning to attend the institution later on.

With the help of our faculty adviser, Miss Della M. Hackett, who came to this school soon after the club was formed, we have instituted many new ideas and improvements in our programs. We have given many successful programs in chapel, among them a presentation, in 1924, of living reproductions of a number of famous paintings.

After her return from a trip abroad, when Miss Lucille Craig assumed the position of faculty adviser, Miss Hackett was able to give the club several interesting talks on art in Europe. These were illustrated with pictures and souvenirs collected during her sojourn there.

Mrs. Kilbourn, supervisor of art in the East Orange schools, has been an honorary member of the club since its formation, and her assistance has proved invaluable to the organization.

This year (1927-28) the Art Club has had two important problems to settle: the question of a club pin and the editing of a magazine. The pin was chosen from drawings submitted by members of the club. The design is used on all programs and printed work.

"The Art Club Window" is published monthly and consists of one copy belonging to the class room. Every member has access to it and is privileged to contribute anything to it which will be of interest.

Most of our meetings this year have been devoted to a discussion of these two problems and to the drawing up of a new constitution. Owing to the increase in membership, we have found it difficult to attempt many field trips. We have substituted a series of talks, given by Miss Hackett and members of the Art Club, on seventeenth and eighteenth century painters, colonial architecture, cartooning, sign advertising, and modern interior decorating.

It is the custom of the club to have a social once a year, to which the members bring guests. This is always a tremendous success.

In looking through the past records of the club, we take pride in the success of former members and officers such as: Turner Elberty, Jean Gaylord, Marjorie Barrett, and Augusta Hornecker. They feel that the Art Club did much to help them achieve success in their work. Who knows what the future may hold for the members of 1927-28?

SYLLABUS STAFF

THE publication of the Syllabus is unlike an athletic victory or a brilliant appearance on the stage. These spectacular successes are events only of the moment, and would soon be forgotten if they were not recorded in the year book. Years and years may pass but we can always look back and live again the good old high school days spent at East Orange. Therefore, it is fitting that we, the Class of 1928, extend our sincere appreciation to the Syllabus Staff for the publishing of our Annual.

We extend our thanks to Mr. Caldwell for his help in aiding us to produce this publication; and to Miss Hallett and Mr. Bauer for their advice and timely correction.

THE DRAMA STUDY CLUB

FREDERICK PORTER

PATRICIA FOWLER

ELIZABETH VAN DERBECK

THE Drama Study Club has flourished in 1927-1928. The aim of the club is to study the plays of the best dramatists and to promote better classical drama.

This year the club has taken up Ibsen and Galsworthy in particular. It has also made a study of current plays in New York, and had one or two theatre parties to see the best presentations. Talks on all phases of the drama and many critical papers have been given by the members throughout the year.

Several plays have been produced by the group. The health play, Dreams to the Rescue, which won the State prize last year, was presented in the fall before the Newark Academy of Medicine; The Importance of Being Clothed, an amusing farce of a vain and selfish woman in politics, was enacted for the school; and Tryst, a light comedy of modern youth, was presented by the club. The latter was written by Garrett Fort, a one-time member of the club, who has since become successful as a scenario writer in Hollywood.

The Drama Study Club this year joined the Church and Drama League, a society for the purpose of promoting and producing better plays. Thus the club can better carry out its aim for the advancement of a higher type of drama.

The club has had its share of lighter pleasures in various socials, impromptu meetings, and Christmas charity work. Altogether the year has proved a very happy and successful one.

THE ORCHESTRA

THE ORCHESTRA

THE CLASS of 1928 has been largely responsible for the growth and improvement of the East Orange High School Orchestra, a group representative of several hundred instrumental music pupils in the city grammar schools. Entering as freshmen, several members of '28 were advanced enough to play in the senior orchestra immediately, without serving the two-years apprenticeship in the lower-class orchestra. At present, twenty-five out of the sixty members of the orchestra are seniors.

During the four years in which the Class of 1928 has been in this school, the orchestra has risen from a small, struggling group, seldom heard in public, to a large symphonic aggregation essentially complete in instrumentation, welcomed everywhere, and enjoyed during chapel periods by the students.

Several invitations were extended to the orchestra by theatres, but only a few could be accepted. In June 1926, the orchestra entertained the audiences of the Tivoli Theatre and received several favorable criticisms from musical authorities. The Mosque Theatre invited the orchestra to play for its audiences for a full week, four performances a day, but the engagement could not be accepted on account of its length. Engagements at the Branford and the Rialto Theatres had to be declined for the same reason. In December, 1926, the orchestra played at the Hollywood and at the Strand Theatres in response to popular request. This past February saw the orchestra at the Stanley Theatre, where audiences were surprised at the excellence of the program presented. The orchestra was chosen from several candidates to furnish the music for the State convention of high school teachers, for three successive years and the school received several compliments on its instrumental music department every year.

The Rotary Club invited the orchestra to play for its State convention at Asbury Park and for several of its dinners in this city. The Chamber of Commerce of the Oranges and Maplewood has asked the orchestra to play for its meetings and dinners ever since it has been in existence. The Newark Contemporary Club, the Kiwanis Club, and the Lions Club have requested the orchestra to furnish music for their entertainments and dinners at various times. On two occasions the orchestra has played before the governor, and both times he has praised the program.

The music departments of South Orange, West Orange, and Bloomfield extended invitations to the orchestra to play for the students of the respective high schools. When East Orange welcomed the Crown Prince of Sweden, the orchestra was chosen to furnish the music for the occasion.

In the Symphony Orchestra of the Oranges and Maplewood, East Orange furnished forty-seven of the one hundred and eight musicians, and the concert-master and all "first chair" players were from East Orange High School. For two years, members of the orchestra were selected to play in the National High School Orchestra which is selected from the country at large to play at the National Superintendents' Convention.

The orchestra has presented a series of children's programs for the grammar schools during the past year. It is the first high school orchestra to give entire programs especially for children. This departure has attracted wide attention in music circles. The orchestra is entered in the State contest of high school orchestras, and is conceded a very good chance of winning.

The East Orange High School String Quartette, a subdivision of the orchestra, is also enrolled in the State contest of string ensembles. This quartette is the first in any high school and has already gained public attention at the "Know Your Own Town Meeting," held under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. The East Orange

High School Band, also under the orchestral department, is participating in a State contest for high school bands. The band needs no advertising; it has played at every football game for the past two seasons. It has gained favorable comment everywhere, both for its musical ability and for its sportsmanlike conduct. The band now numbers forty players, more than double the number of four years ago.

The Class of 1928 realizes that the credit for this progress must be given to Mr. C. Paul Herfurth and takes this opportunity of thanking him for his untiring and unselfish work.

THE GLEE CLUBS

DURING the past year, the East Orange High School Glee Clubs have endeavored to set a much higher standard of accomplishment than has ever been attained before. Under the direction of Mrs. Archer, and with the encouragement of Mrs. Gearhart's inspiring accompaniment, they have sought to make their work artistic rather than spectacular. They have tried also to show variety in choice of pieces as well as originality in rendition, and in every case their efforts have been rewarded with fullest appreciation by parents and musical critics, and with hearty support and endorsement by the students themselves. From a financial standpoint, the season has been successful, while from an artistic one, the results have been most gratifying.

At Christmas time, the Glee Clubs again made their annual presentation of the carols, carrying the Christian's holyday spirit into the school's Christmas celebration. Besides the well-known favorites, they gave several traditional carols of other nations, singing the Russian, "The Carol of the Little Children," the French, "Bring a Torch, Jeannette, Isabella" and the Saxon-English, "Good King Wenceslas," which was sung in solo parts by members of the Boys' Glee Club. The students in chapel gained a great deal of satisfaction from the splendid singing of the vocally gifted students.

Following the chapel program, the Glee Clubs made their usual rounds of the school, sending the echoes of their carols through the corridors and rooms. Even more effective than ever was this old Glee Club custom, which made the spirit of hope and joy resound through the halls of East Orange High School as well as in the hearts of her pupils. This same message the Glee Club carried with them to City Hall, where, as envoys of good-will and cheer from East Orange High they serenaded the Mayor and Council.

Another innovation, which had been started earlier in the year, was the inauguration of voice classes, the aims of which were to develop better-trained voices through correct instruction, to give extra practice in part-singing to the members of the Glee Clubs, and lastly, but by far the most important, to stimulate an appreciation of good vocal music in the students, who in turn would pass on to their fellows their enthusiasm and interest.

The success of this plan was marked, for not only were the original aims and hopes fulfilled, but these classes proved of great importance in training members of the chorus in preparation for the final concert. That the students responded quickly and well was shown by the amount of new interest created and the height attained by the enthusiasm of some students.

The Glee Clubs had a splendid reward to offer to four of their most faithful workers and talented voices. Owing to the fact that East Orange was requested by the National High School Chorus Association to send four representatives to the convention held in Chicago the week of April 16, and to the fact that the Board of Education kindly consented to pay the expenses of the quartette, Mary Heiss, Grace Hermann, Tom Kelly, and Fred Porter enjoyed seeing the world on an expense account. Not only was East Orange one of the few representative schools from New Jersey, but was also one of the few in the country to send a quartette to the convention. Such an honor might easily be expected to turn the heads of the clubs, but it served only as an added incentive to seek greater heights in their annual production.

The peak of the season was reached on March 29, when the combined Glee Clubs were presented in concert in the High School Auditorium. In former years, it had been the custom to present an operetta or light opera as the crowning masterpiece of the season. This year, the directors of the clubs, in the belief that past productions had placed the stress on histrionic rather than on artistic quality, vocal ability, or musical understanding, decided to break the precedent and give a concert instead.

Mr. William Breach of New York, a splendid barytone, supported the Glee Clubs with two groups of songs, which not only provided variety, but gave additional distinction to an already fine program. Marie Schmactenberg sang two incidental solos in the last number. Judging solely by the enthusiastic applause with which the audience responded, the concert was a supreme success. Adding the comments of delighted critics, the Glee Clubs feel assured they fulfilled their aim of producing a truly artistic performance, whose merits were judged solely by the quality of their vocal renditions. The flowers which were passed over the footlights to Mrs. Archer and Mrs. Gearhart expressed but ineffectually the deep appreciation and confidence which the members felt toward their leaders in this, their greatest triumph.

The program of the Concert follows in full.

FOOTBALL

WHEN Coach Grosebaugh called for football candidates in September, a large squad reported in the gym. It was soon found that we should have a heavy line, with a light, shifty backfield. The only veterans from last year's team were Hank Steffens and Ken Davidson, ends; Captain Weinzier, guard; and Andy Schmidt, tackle. The backfield, with the exception of two second string men, was made up of new material.

In her first appearance of the season, with Hackensack, at Ashland Stadium, East Orange made a very favorable impression by winning 8-6. With summer weather prevailing, the student body trouted in enthusiastically, and despite the terrific heat, showed good school spirit in their cheering. Because of the weather, Grosie did not force them, but, by alternating the first and second teams, he kept the players fresh throughout the game. East Orange displayed a clever forward passing attack and, strengthened by the fine kicking of Jones, was apparently on her way to a successful season. Dordleman, Brueno, Egan and Neuert also played a fine game.

On the following Saturday, Atlantic City, the team which held the Red and Blue to a 3-0 win last year, appeared with practically the same line-up and finally, after a hard fight, conquered East Orange 6-0. Atlantic City's ability to hit the line and our failure to put the ball across when in scoring distance, gave the shore boys the game.

Both of East Orange's chances for a score came in the second period. Jones received a pass in mid-field and ran thirty yards before he was downed. After getting the ball in position, Dordleman dropped back for a kick. His attempted kick was blocked, but an East Orange man fell on the ball. The Red and Blue failed to gain, and Atlantic City kicked out of danger. Egan ran the ball back thirty yards, and a forward pass brought the ball to the one yard line. Here East Orange lacked the punch and in four downs failed to push the ball across. Atlantic City opened the third period with an astonishing burst of speed. The combination of a couple of deceptive tricks with a few penalties, gave Atlantic City the only score of the game.

In the third game of the season East Orange showed great improvement, winning against a strong Dickinson team 32-12. A very sensational passing attack, with Gil Jones and Arnold Dordleman alternating in the passing and receiving positions, proved too much for Dickinson. The Jersey City team scored first when a Dickinson back ran sixty-five yards through the whole East Orange team for a touch-down. Jones kicked off to Dickinson, who, after losing the ball on downs, found herself facing a perfect backfield attack. After advancing the ball twenty yards through the line, Dordleman shot a beautiful pass to Jones, who went over to tie the score. At the beginning of the second period, the same combination was used, and the score changed to 13-6 in favor of East Orange. This score stood until the second half, when Mulligan, the star back of the Dickinson team, once more broke away, this time for a long run of eighty yards and a touch-down, making the score 13-12. A short time later, a blocked kick resulted in another touch-down for East Orange. Immediately following, Gil Jones broke away for sixty-five yards and another six points. Grosie then sent in the second team, who proved just as effective as the first by scoring another touchdown before the final whistle.

A long, smooth-working aerial attack conquered Phillipsburg in East Orange's fourth game of the season. George Brueno scored eighteen points and was the outstanding player on the field. Just after the opening whistle, Brueno went over for the first score, and in the same period Dordleman threw a long pass to Brueno, who stepped over. In the second period Whitehead broke through and blocked a kick. Although he promptly fell on it, the referee called it a safety, making the score 16-0. The Phillipsburg team braced considerably during the last half, and East Orange found more opposition. On the first few plays, East Orange was stopped at every turn; but Brueno, after running back a punt twenty yards, took a long pass from Dordleman and carried the ball to Phillipsburg's ten-yard line. On the next play Brueno carried the ball across. That ended the scoring for the day but revealed the strong Red and Blue aerial power.

In one of the most startling upsets of the season, Montclair drubbed East Orange by a 34-0 score. Before the largest crowd this year, at Ashland Stadium, the Montclair team out-thought, out-guessed, and out-played the Red and Blue. Hardly had the opening whistle died away when Ask, the Montclair flash, took the ball over for a touch-down. East Orange immediately marched down the field only to be turned back on Montclair's five yard line. Montclair kicked; and Egan, receiving the ball for East Orange, ran thirty-five yards before being downed. Brueno shot two long passes, good for forty yards, to Steffens; but again the Mountaineers held. They kicked, and Egan took the ball, this time going sixty-five yards before being downed. Another pass to Steffens made ten yards, but Montclair held for four downs. In the second half Montclair ran wild. Fritts blocked a kick and fell on it behind East Orange's goal posts. Ask kicked the point. An intercepted pass gave Montclair their third touch-down, and Ask followed up with the fourth by going through the middle of the line. Before the final whistle Zobian plunged through for the fifth and final touch-down. In this game, despite the one-sided score, Captain Weinzeir, Weisgerber, Steffens, and Brueno played well.

During the following week, East Orange was again decisively beaten. Plainfield, for the second successive year, overcame East Orange, mainly through the efforts of Captain Viviano, the plunging back of the Plainfield team. His five touch-downs were more than enough for our seven points. He seemed to gallop through Grosie's boys at will and so fattened his average in this contest that, by the end of the season, he was high scorer of the State.

Preceding the Barringer contest, East Orange, although slated to win, dropped her third straight game of the season to an improved Kearny team. On the second play following the kick-off, Captain Ronnie took the ball fifty yards for a touch-down through the whole East Orange team. The extra point was added, and the score remained 7-0 throughout the half, Kearny being content to remain on the defensive. With the beginning of the last half, Kearny once more opened her offensive and brought the ball down to the East Orange twenty-yard line. Here, however, the line held, and once in possession of the ball, the Red and Blue marched down to their opponents' ten-yard line, only to lose the ball on a fumble. Kearny punted to the middle of the field, and East Orange started another drive. A few line plays, followed by a long forward from Dordleman to Jones, resulted in a touch-down for East Orange, but Jones' try for the extra point went wide. We made several other bids for a score, but the count remained 7-6 until the final whistle.

For the sixth time in as many years, Barringer beat East Orange in the annual Thanksgiving contest. Although the score was 20-7, the Big Blue had no easy time of it. The game at the City Field was played in a drizzle, and the field was in poor condition, making the footing treacherous. East Orange got the first break when a Barringer man fumbled and failed to recover. Van Deusen, playing half-back for the Red and Blue, immediately took the ball over, and Jones added the one point. Through fumbles and passes Barringer made a touch-down, but Parker's try for the extra point was blocked. For the rest of the quarter the ball see-sawed back and forth, neither team getting within scoring distance. Barringer made two more touch-downs in the last half, one on a blocked kick which bounded behind the goal.

East Orange, with a lack of experienced material, last year closed one of the most disastrous seasons in her history; the 1928 prospects, however, seem bright.

Those awarded letters for this year were: Captain Weinzeir, Steffens, Davidson, Schroeder, Weisgerber, Whitehead, Lindstrom, Hart, Schmit, Smith, Frankel, Rosenstein, Seiser, Dordleman, Jones, Egan, Brueno, Van Deusen, Sands, Cohen and Manager Taylor.

Rear Row: Charles Byrnes, Manager; Ross Cummings, Daniel Smith, Paul Fitzpatrick, Gilbert Jones, Ernest Benatre, Coach.

BASKETBALL

IN SPITE of gloomy prospects at the beginning of the season, East Orange turned out a strong basketball team. With a record of ten wins against five defeats, the Red and Blue has made a very creditable record. A fast attack, combined with a strong defense, was mainly responsible for the good showing.

In a preliminary game with the local college boys from Upsala, East Orange was finally beaten by a close 19-18 score. The college junior varsity jumped off to an early lead, but "Gobby" Bonnell, playing a strong game for the Red and Blue, soon got his eye on the basket and, by the end of the half, East Orange was in the lead 13-8. East Orange kept the lead throughout the third quarter, but in the fourth quarter, following some accurate throws from mid-court by their center, Upsala took the lead and held it to the finish. East Orange had several chances to tie and even win the game, but for some reason could not cage the ball when given the opportunity.

In East Orange's first official game of the season, West Orange was beaten 27-21. It was a close contest, with West Orange leading at half time 13-12. After a fast third quarter, with both teams playing well, the score was tied at 17-all. In the last quarter, with East Orange playing the fastest basketball of the afternoon, West Orange was completely bewildered and scored only four points. This game, however, was marred by a tendency of both teams to foul. "Gobby" Bonnell, the star East Orange forward, scored fourteen points. "Al" Fehn and "Bus" Steinberg also starred on the defense.

East Orange was stopped, however, in the second game, by a fast team from Orange, with a close 16-14 score. The Orange boys were after a victory and played hard, having been twice beaten by Coach Benatre's men in the previous season. Al Fehn and Bus Steinberg played a good defensive game, and Morton and Montgomery played a good floor game.

East Orange dropped another fast game to Nutley, the score being 21-20. The contest, although only a practice game, revealed a weakness in the East Orange defense. East Orange also failed to make their free throws count and missed some easy shots from the field. Fitzpatrick opened up the East Orange attack and from then the teams alternated in taking the lead. Towards the end, although outscored by five points, East Orange started throwing desperately and cut down the lead to one point. The whistle blew before either team could do any more scoring. Fehn and Steinberg played their usual steady defensive game, while Fitzpatrick was fast on the offense.

East Orange continued her losing streak in the next game with East Side. The game was fast and close, and the result was in doubt until the final whistle; moreover a short court, unlike our own, proved a serious handicap. East Orange's failure to score on foul shots also proved disastrous.

East Orange hit her stride, however, in the next game with Kearny, overwhelming the visitors by the score of 38-7. Dan Smith, scoring fifteen point, played a fine game for East Orange.

East Orange continued her winning streak by taking two games from Montclair and Irvington. In the Montclair game, both teams were in good form and no one starred. East Orange played a steady game in defeating Irvington 19-7.

East Orange ran her winning streak to four in a very fast and exciting game with the Columbia High of South Orange. The score, after varying little throughout the game, finally resulted in another victory for the Red and Blue, 22-21. Fehn and Bonnell each played well, the former accounting for two pretty field goals while the latter ran up eleven points, at times dribbling the whole length of the field and shooting from under the basket.

Our winning streak of four straight was snapped by Plainfield, the home team finally winning 19-17. At the end of the first half, with East Orange almost always on the defense, the score was 10-5 in favor of Plainfield. Plainfield stretched their score to 17-11 in the third quarter, and after a desperate rally in the last quarter by the Red and Blue, Plainfield finally took the game.

For the second time in the season, Montclair fell before a fast East Orange team, the score 21-16. At no time was the Red and Blue in danger, although the score stood 10-7 at the half. Morton and Bonnell played a fine game; in fact the whole team played so well that Coach Benatre sent in three second string men, who performed with equal effectiveness.

The next game resulted in the second victory of the season over the boys from Columbia High, but not until the South Orange boys had put up a stiff fight with the score always in doubt. The game ended with the Red and Blue on the larger end of a 24-22 score.

East Orange conquered West Orange by a 22-18 score in a fast but erratic game. The Red and Blue held the lead throughout the game, although hard pressed in some stages.

Dickinson, reputed one of the fastest teams in the State, fell before East Orange by the close score of 17-16, with Bonnell and Steinberg starring.

In the last official game of the season, Irvington scored a surprise victory, score 19-12. The game was erratic and poorly played especially since both teams should have been in top form.

East Orange showed wonderful form in subduing, by a 22-11 score, a very fast alumni team composed of the Currey brothers, Junzleman, Heimert, Coremus and other former Red and Blue stars.

SOCCKER

MILTON KATZ
DOUGLAS MONTGOMERY
STANLEY M. GRIFFIN

Captain
Manager
Coach

THE Red and Blue soccer team had, this year, the most successful season since soccer became a major sport at East Orange. By winning seven games, tying two, and losing only three, the team established a record which future teams will find hard to better. Although most of the material was new and inexperienced at the start of the season, Coach Griffin developed a powerful team which was defeated only by Harrison and Kearny.

East Orange started off well by winning convincingly their first five games. The St. Benedict team was the first on the schedule and fell before a strong East Orange team, 4-1. Captain Katz and his men played the entire game as though in mid-season form.

In a hard-fought battle with the strong Verona team, the Red and Blue once more were victors. Katz and Johnson starred again in this game. Thanks to them and to the fine defensive work of Fehn and Steinberg, Verona never threatened.

As a preliminary to the football game, Dickinson played East Orange at soccer. The Red and Blue, by 2-0 score, extended their winning streak to three games. The whole East Orange aggregation displayed fine team-work. Katz and Johnson played exceptionally well. Katz was hurt during the game, but even his injury failed to slow him up. It was a new idea to have a soccer game precede the football game, and the innovation was received favorably by the students.

In a return match with the St. Benedict team, the Gray Bees showed much improvement over their first game, and East Orange had to work hard to score the only point in the game. The lone tally was registered by Bob Moot, who had been consistently scoring points in previous contests.

East Orange won her fifth straight game by defeating Montclair 2-0 in another preliminary. This game was marked by hard kicking by both teams. In spite of the score, the two teams were very evenly matched. Moot scored first for East Orange on a short kick, following a corner. Johnson, the star center-half, tallied again in the second period. During the remainder of the game, the ball was kept almost entirely in Montclair territory.

The sixth game of the season, with Barringer, resulted in a tie, the score being 1-1. Bob Moot scored the only point for East Orange, and Barringer soon followed with a point to tie the game. Although both teams fought hard for scores during the rest of the match, fine defensive playing kept the score tied at 1-1.

East Orange met her first defeat of the season when Harrison, with her usual speedy, brainy team, outclassed East Orange, winning 4-0. Harrison won every game on her schedule and at the end of the season gained the title of State champion. Harrison had the edge in all departments of the game, and the Red and Blue were not once in the running.

Dickinson was a greatly improved team when she played East Orange in a return match, and succeeded in holding the Red and Blue to a tie.

The next game was with Kearny, who duplicated Harrison's win by the score of 4-0. The Kearny boys had a strong team, which kept East Orange out of scoring distance most of the game. Later in the season, Kearny played Harrison to decide the State championship, both teams having failed to lose a game during the entire season.

East Orange, however, redeemed herself by gaining a decisive victory over Montclair in a return game. The team played splendidly and clinched the N. J. I. A. A. championship. Captain Katz and Owens made two scores, while the third score was made in a scrimmage by a Montclair player.

The Red and Blue tried to avenge her previous defeat at the hands of Kearny, but was unable to make a score. Kearny, playing a strong defensive and offensive game, beat East Orange again, 4-0. East Orange held her opponents to one score in the first period, but Kearny launched her attack in the final period and piled up three more points. Only the clever work of Burke, playing goal for the Red and Blue, kept the score down in the final half.

The last game of the season resulted in a victory for East Orange against Barringer. The Big Blue, which previously had held East Orange to a tie, fell easily before the terrific offensive attack launched by Coach Griffin's men.

SWIMMING

THIS year's swimming team, by winning six out of eight of her dual meets, has established a record for the school. Under the leadership of Coach Stanley Griffin, the team has surpassed the records of all previous Red and Blue teams.

At the beginning of the season the material was not particularly promising, two of last year's stars having left the school. Thus, East Orange's overwhelming victory over Morristown High in our first meet, came as a surprise to everyone. Chalmers, Walsh, and Fish were largely responsible for our 49-13 score. When East Orange continued to win, by beating Barringer 42-18, new and powerful material was displayed.

Although beaten by a well-organized Blair Academy team 35-27, the Red and Blue once more got into her stride by taking the next three meets from Pingry, Plainfield, and Morristown. In the next contest, however, East Orange suffered her second setback in dual meets, losing to Pingry. East Orange scored her sixth win in eight stars by once more defeating Barringer. The final score was 46-14.

Following this victory, East Orange entered the State meet, to determine the high school championship. Our hard-fighting team finished second, Atlantic City, last year's champions again winning first place. Chalmers, in the Annual National Inter-scholastic meet scored a fifth place for East Orange.

The outlook is bright for next season for the team loses few members by graduation. Chalmers, the star throughout the season, is only a sophomore.

EAST ORANGE'S baseball team has launched its 1928 season in a very successful manner. In the first game of the season East Orange, handicapped by a lack of practice, met the strong Kearny team and was defeated 14-1. The one bright spot of the game was George Brueno's home run, the first by a Red and Blue player.

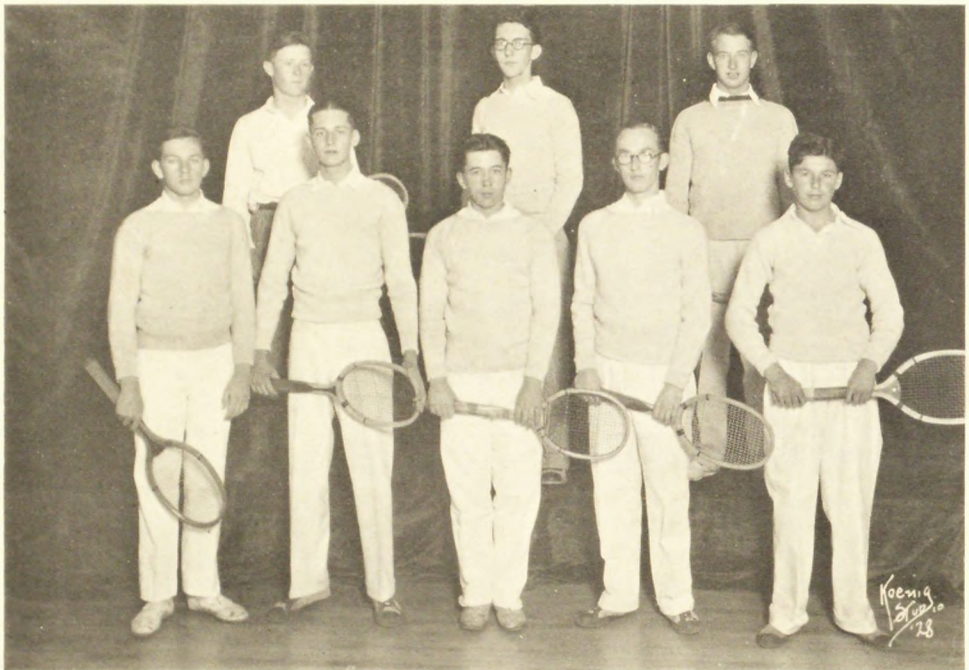

The team hit its winning stride in defeating Montclair 8-4. The game was safe after Douglas, a sophomore, hit a triple in the eighth inning to score three runs. In the third game East Orange did even better by overcoming Hackensack 10-2. From these satisfactory indications it appears that the team will have a good season.

The weather man was not very good to the team this spring. In the early weeks of practice there were many showers which lasted just long enough to spoil the playing surface. The team was further handicapped in that Ashland field was not available, and practice had to be held at the various playgrounds.

The Athletic Association is a move on the part of the school to finance athletics in East Orange High School. Every student who subscribes to a one-dollar membership is entitled to witness free all the football, basketball, and baseball games which are run under school management, except the Barringer football game.

The money thus taken in, combined with the gate receipts of the games, not only pays the expenses of our athletic ventures, but also helps to pay off the debt on the stadium.

SOCIAL

The social activities of the Class of 1928 formed a very important part of their senior year. In the social phase of their school life the seniors proved their remarkable ability. Dinners, dances, and dramatics found their place in the senior activities and afforded some of the most pleasant and enjoyable times of all the year. What senior will look back on his last year at high school without fond memories of the social affairs that took place frequently and successfully during the year. A great deal of the success of these social activities is due to the efforts of the very efficient and hard-working social committee who planned these affairs exceptionally well. The committee consisted of Eloise Dixon, chairman; Florence Deliduka, Mary Norman, Richard Fowler, Frederick Porter.

The first of the affairs that the social committee fostered was a committee dance in November. This dance was held in the boys' gym in the afternoon, and had the oddity of dance orders in place of stags. In spite of this reversion to the old-fashioned, the committee dance was a complete success, and a good time was had by all.

Quite a novelty in the way of a committee dance took place on March 1, in the form of a leap-year dance. The girls brought the boys or came as stags. The girls did the cutting also. This exchange of position caused such a hilarious and merry party, and the dance was such a great success socially and financially, that another similar one was held in April.

One of the most successful social functions of the year was the Fourth Annual Mother and Daughter Dinner, held January 26, with the cooperation of the Home and School Association and the senior girls. The committee in charge were Miss Fawcett, Mrs. Hunt, Mrs. Harding, Mary Norman. Florence Deliduka, Margaret Mervine, and Anita Harding took care of the minor committees. The dinner was a most jovial one and the mothers and daughters enjoyed an evening of good-fellowship. Songs were sung and cheers were given between courses, led by Ethel Grosvenor and Eloise Dixon, who greatly added to the hilarity of the occasion. After dinner a most interesting program took place. Mr. Heiss spoke in behalf of the Board of Education, Mrs. Dixon for the mothers, Peggy Delaney for the senior girls, and Mrs. Hinni for the faculty. Mrs. Alexander Black gave a highly amusing discourse on changing fashions and morals, finishing the evening's entertainment in a most delightful way.

The seniors scored a triumphant success in a social way at the annual Junior-Senior Prom on March 17. Festive green decoration afforded a gay background for the party, and the syncopated music was of the very best. It was surely a dance of which the seniors might be proud, and a dance which would give the juniors an incentive for something equally as good the following year. Perhaps as a dance it was excelled only by the Grad Dance, the last dance of the year for the seniors and the very best one, too. In spite of the ominous fact that the seniors would never again dance at the high school as students, their spirits rose as the evening went on, and the dance proved a very merry and happy one.

Surely the seniors may look back with pride upon their social career, and connect with other more serious memories of their high school life those of their gay social activities.

SENIOR DRAMATICS

The most ambitious production ever attempted by a senior class in East Orange High School was "The Piper" by Josephine Peabody Marks.

When the great Shakespeare Memorial Theatre was opened at Stratford-on-Avon in England, a prize was offered for the best play, and "The Piper" was declared the winner. With an unusually large cast, and a play that demanded fine acting and a unique setting, the seniors undertook a stupendous task.

The story of the play deals with life in the little town of Hamelin after the Piper has removed the scourge of the rats. The play opens three days after the magic piping, when the townspeople are discussing the mysterious Piper and whether or not he will return. He soon appears in the guise of a strolling mountebank, accompanied by Michael, the Sword Eater, and Cheat-the-Devil. Thereupon, the good folk of Hamelin decide to reward the Piper's efforts with fifteen guilders rather than the promised three hundred. He punishes their faithlessness by piping forth the children of the town and disappearing with them.

The mothers of Hamelin had always scorned Veronika, the mother of little lame Jan, because of her foreign birth; but now, in their common sorrow, they sympathize with her for the first time.

Veronika finds the Piper and pleads for the return of just one child. She makes her plea for the sake of the Lonely Man whom her little Jan had always loved.

Moreover, the people had induced Jacobus, the Burgomeister, to give his daughter Barbara to the church, hoping that the sacrifice of the only remaining child will restore the others. Barbara falls in love with Michael, the Sword Eater, however, and upsets the plan.

Barbara returns married to Michael and refuses to let the townspeople slander the Piper. Just then the Piper returns to be hailed as a wrongdoer. He silences the people, however, by telling them that one child may return. Each begs that it may be his, but the Piper calls for Veronika. The priest, Anselm, appears saying that Veronika is dying. In spite of this the Piper continues to call below her window. She appears, a piping is heard, and Jan comes in playing, no longer lame. The Piper forgives the selfishness and greed of the towns' folk, and restores their children. The Hamelin folk beg the Piper to remain, but he leaves to pipe some more for the Lonely Man.

The acting of Rogers Woodruff as the Piper was superb. In his masterly presentation of a difficult part, we predict great success for him in the future. So pathetic was the acting of Peggy Delaney as Veronika that the audience was deeply affected. Alfred Guest, the buffon was indeed amusing with his jolly presentation of Cheat-the-Devil. These three, perhaps deserve especial mention, though the work of the whole group was remarkable. Mr. Galpin had charge of the directing, and it was due to his untiring coaching, unusual ability, and cheerful encouragement that the play was so successful.

THE Dagger and Mask Club has been during the past year one of the most active organizations in East Orange High School. Though only a year old, it has already extended its activities into all fields of dramatic endeavor, staging and writing plays as well as reading and analyzing them.

This year the club managed the production and costumes of the Senior Dramatics. We also produced the Christmas play, with Marjorie Buckley, Charlotte McCollough, Carol Newman and Carol Morse in the cast. On May first and on May third, in chapel, the Club put on Lord Dunsany's "A Night at an Inn" under the direction of Sidney Stern and under the supervision of Mr. Galpin. The cast included James Stewart, George Paine, Sidney Stern, and Norman Rosenthal.

An average attendance at meetings of over thirty has placed this newly-formed organization among the largest and most enthusiastic clubs in the school.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF THE CLASS OF 1928

At length the lawyer drew his trusty knife,
And, when the last apparent signs of life
Had left the corpe of '28 quite dead,
He broke the seal, drew forth the will, and read:

To you, the Class of nineteen-twenty-nine,
The foremost heir of my illustrious line,
I leave one intellectual faculty
With all their liking for the letter "E."
When first I entered on this vale of tears,
I introduced for all succeeding years
A student government and student court
To keep the freshmen of the noisy sort
From making bedlam out of our dear school;
Now I bequeath to you its care and rule.

Before the freshman class knew how to walk,
When they could only crawl about and squawk,
More than six years ago to be exact,
It's hard to understand but its a fact
That when the senior class went on its way,
It willed a vict'ry on Thanksgiving Day.
Alas! That all important legacy
Has been neglected since that victory.
I gladly leave the coming junior class
The right to bring that miracle to pass.

You're sophomores now, but bear this fact in mind:
While you have gone ahead you're still behind.
One year does not suffice within these halls
To change green freshmen into know-it-alls.
From that thick veil of fag you're coming out,
And soon you'll learn what school is all about;
But now you're only simple little sophs,
So fear the seniors and respect the profs.
One right I grant to you: you may assist
In keeping freshmen in an endless mist.

And now to you, the freshest of them all,
Goes every teacher-governed study hall,
Thousands of summonses to student courts,
And just as many "E's" on your reports;
Long hours of sleeping in detention room
Amid its dark and solitary gloom,
Homework and tests and other toils galore,
The ridicule of ev'ry sophomore.
But while I'm willing all this joy to you,
I know next year I'll be a freshman too!

WILLIAM W. WATT, lawyer.

OUR TEACHERS

Do we love our teachers? Of course, you know we do.
The following effusion is to prove this fact to you.

- A is for Selma of musical trend; she'd sing, if you'd listen, for hours on end.
B is for Glen, the Physical terror, in doing his work beware of an error.
C is for Charles with his new derby hat, and his new Buick too; Don't dare forget that.
D for Orlando, he's A number 1; with him you'll learn math and think that it's fun.
E is for Charles of English the chief. To study with him is quite a relief.
F stands for Franklin of dignified mien, possessor in full of the students' esteem.
G is for Grosy revered by us all. He is known by his walk as he plods through the hall.
H is for Linda of whom we're all scared. Don't come to her class unless you're prepared.
I is for ignorance that we did profess, but now we have conquered it, more or less.
J is for jokes, which the students must hear, retold by the faculty years after year.
K is for Lewis a jolly good sport; if put to a vote, we'd all like his sort.
L is for Silas who stings by the score. If we had some courage, we'd say a lot more.
M is for Charles so buxom and blithe, with fine determination he pushes through life.
N is for nescience, a word that means dumb, which by coming to high school we quite overcome.
O is for office, L. Jay's grim lair; just to pass through the door gives the freshmen a scare.
P is for Harold so docile and fair; he has oceans of math stored under his hair.
Q is for questions by pupils propounded. By our ignorance teachers are often astounded.
R is for Frank, a popular boy. Good Teacher? Much right, he makes learning a joy.
S is for Staff in the office to be seen; where they serve lazy students and teachers serene.
T is for Philip quite lengthy and tall. He's respected as well as looked up to by all.
U is for Mary in one-twenty-one, where she brings up the freshies as it ought to be done.
X is for excuses made while you wait, and offered to teachers as innocent bait.
Y is for youth, the reason for teachers; arch-persecutors of all us poor creatures.
Z is for zeros in the little gray books, that are often accompanied by sinister looks.

Do we love our teachers? The whole world knows we do.
The foregoing confusion doubtless proves that all to you.

TWENTY YEARS AFTER OR THE FATE OF THE CLASS OF 1928

APOLOGY

In Greece, when prophecies were all the rage,
At Delphi sat a priestess, very sage,
Who breathed the fumes which issued from a chasm,
Until she fell into a drunken spasm;
She spoke as most men do in such a state,
And sold her words as prophecies of fate.
But I, averse to speaking Greek while "?"
Must swear my prophecy's a lot of bunk.
And now, O Seniors, open up your ears,
And learn where you will be in twenty years.

Where is that perfumed sofa shiek, with patent-leather hair,
Who used to lean against the walls,
Of our dear Alma Mater's halls,
And charm those rouged and powdered dolls
With all his smart hot air?
He's working as a waiter in a stylish cabaret;
He meets with all the girls he wants—and gets three bucks a day.

Where is that vamp who roamed the halls, that ravishing brunette,
Who used to dye her boyish hair,
And make herself look far from fair,
To answer every boy friend's prayer?
Alas! She does it yet;
With thickly powdered, turned-up nose, she struts upon the screen,
Her countless boy friends see her there; she is a movie queen.

Where is that boy who used to go to sleep in every class,
Who never saw a book at night,
And yet, when called on to recite,
Could always bluff it through just right—
And always barely pass?
He's digging for the street department, poor unhappy fool,
When six departments couldn't teach him how to dig in school.

Where is the girl they called a grind, the teachers' pride and pet,
Who studied all her high-school days,
Who realized it always pays,
If one will have a string of A's,
To study hard and sweat?
She teaches in a high-school now, some kind of 'ology,
And wonders why her pupils, too, can't be as smart as she.

Where is that boy who proudly wore the Pin, E. O. C. P.,
 Who brought the culprits into court,
 For devilish deeds of every sort,
 Each to serve sentence, long or short;
 You ask me, where is he?
You'll find him down on Market Street, commanding Go and Stop,
He wears a bright blue uniform for he's a traffic cop.

Where are the roguish culprits now, who used to throng the courts,
 Whose studying was always done,
 Who thought that room two-twenty-one
 Was made to order for their fun,
 And all their childish sports?
Alas! These rascals all have had quite notable careers;
The judge no longer speaks in hours; he speaks in terms of years.

Where is that noisy orator, with all his flow'ry bosh,
 Who flew into a dreadful rage,
 When pennies clattered on the stage,
 Propelled by youths of tender age,
 The idiotic frosh?
He's yelling for a side-show now, beneath a circus tent,
He hasn't changed so much—but now he welcomes every cent.

Among the surging circus crowds we hurry through the gate,
 Upon a pedestal within,
 The "human shadow," pale and thin,
 Wears on his coat a small gold pin,
 E.O.-one-nine-two-eight.
You ask, "How came this luckless wretch to join the side-show bunch?"
This is the lad who used to buy that tasty nickel lunch.

CONCLUSION

And so, if you don't come among these eight,
There isn't room to prophesy your fate;
For you, both girls and boys, one truth I've scrawled:
Four out of five at forty will be bald.

WILLIAM W. WATT.
