THIS IS THE FOREWORD; BRACE YOURSELF:

Chances are you picked up this book so you could look back on the years you spent at East Orange High School, so you could remember what the old place was like when you were there. Or perhaps you wanted to relive some moment in your high school career, a moment when something unforgettable happened, like the time when you spent hours pruning and polishing your poem for Echoes, and when the magazine came out you found your work published with a note under the title saying "Second Prize". That was a happy moment. Or maybe the time you want to remember is poignant, like the day that you learned you had been chosen captain of the team, instead of your best friend whom you'd hoped would win. Or the moment may have been tragic, as it was when you slaved over your project and submitted it with high hopes, only to have it judged by the judging committee as "second rate". Or, perhaps your moment was triumphant like the time you caught that touchdown pass at the Barringer game, and you and your buddies pulled the team through for an undefeated season. But win or lose, succeed or fail, E.O.-H.S. helped to form your future.

REMEMBER?

some helpful advice.

“100 Years of Memories . . . ”

It was only 100 years ago that four square miles of the Eastern part of the City of Orange was separated to form the City of East Orange. It is hard to imagine, when we look around our city today, that it was once a small farm town of only 3,000 people. Since that time in 1863 the face of East Orange has certainly changed. Buses now travel the routes where Indian corn once grew. Our City's first newspaper, The East Orange Gazette, reported one of the first uses of the telephone, a convenience which has always been a part of our lives. This year, as we celebrate the East Orange Centennial, we cannot help but feel proud of the changes and improvements made in these 100 years. Modern structures such as the Garden State Parkway, the new addition to East Orange High School, and the many luxury apartments which line East Orange streets are just a few of our City's recent improvements. We've also to be proud of East Orange's reputation for being the cleanest city in the country. But in the next 100 years there should be even more changes in East Orange, for the City has many plans for the future. There are several urban renewal programs now in progress, and many private and public buildings are under construction. And, perhaps, the greatest project for the future is the East-West Freeway, which will make East Orange the cross-roads of New Jersey.

Mayor Kelly gets the Centennial Celebration under way with a speech in the high school auditorium.

East Orange is especially proud of its City Hall.

"Forever in Our Memories . . ."

"Mr. Robinson was a gentle, friendly teacher and an honest, sincere man. Our school is less for his loss." These words from Mr. Loesch eloquently sum up the feelings of all of us who knew Mr. George B. Robinson, late head of the history department, during his nineteen years at East Orange High School. The student body wishes to pay tribute to this man whose patience and sympathy, dedication to teaching, and desire to help others will long be remembered. Students knew him as an understanding teacher possessed of the rare ability to make his subject come alive. He was always an experimenter, constantly using novel, vivid ways of making history interesting. Born August 3, 1900, in Moorestown, New Jersey, Mr. Robinson attended Rutgers University and graduated in 1923, where he earned his Litt. B. He received his M.A. from Columbia University in 1938. As a person, Mr. Robinson was a direct, reliable man with a rich sense of humor. As Mr. Loesch remembered "his humor was so subtle you always had to watch closely to see if he was serious or not." Though gentle with everyone around him, this man was a quiet crusader for what he believed in; his kindness by no means prevented him from being frank. Mr. Robinson has always stood high in the esteem of his students and colleagues. Like history, he was a part of our past, and in that sense, as well as in a personal sense, he will continue to influence our futures.

“The minds that guide us . . . ”

A body—the shape and structure of anything—a pattern—a manner or method—the ideal or intrinsic value of anything—conduct regulated by custom—orderly arrangement—physical and mental condition! Each is a definition of form, one of the two key words in the theme Forms of the Future.

There are other definitions, but these particular meanings have more significance than others for young men and women about to brave the adventures of a challenging, changing world. Just what form the future will take for each one of you is a matter no one at this moment can determine with assurance.

But one can almost guarantee that the shape and structure of your lives in the years ahead will be molded by those aspects of living in which you face each day, by the methods you use to solve your problems, and by the standards of conduct you will demand of yourselves.

A safe prediction is that the arrangement of the events of tomorrow has begun to develop according to the patterns of living you have already established during your years in school. Each teacher and each principal with whom you have ever worked devoutly hopes these patterns have provided you with a mental and physical conditioning that will enable you to cope successfully with whatever form your future takes.

MORGAN T. LOESCH

No successful future just happens. It takes form early in the life of the person affected. I am most pleased to see the members of this graduating class take the time to stand back, survey the situation, and then attempt to form the future—taking into consideration the many variables which may change the form. You are on your way.

ROBERT H. SEITZER

STANDING: Paul V. Moody, Sheldon O. Smith, Robert H. Seitzer, Foster M. Burton, W. George Hayward. SEATED: Patrick J. McLoughlin, Maurice N. Trainer, William L. Hoffmann, Scott Harris, Mrs. Mildred Barry.

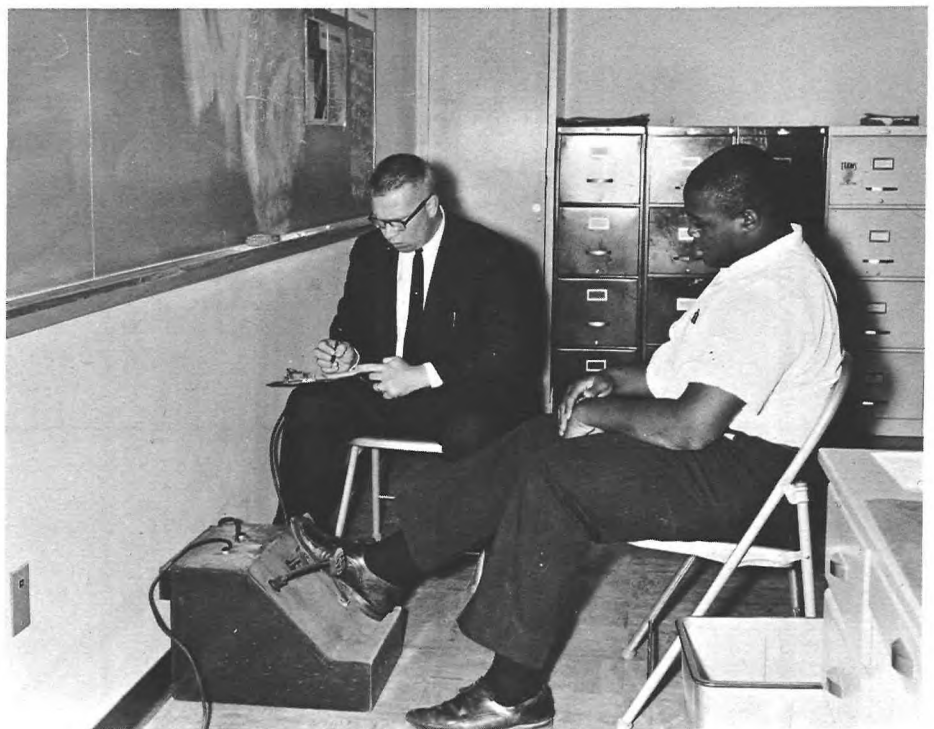

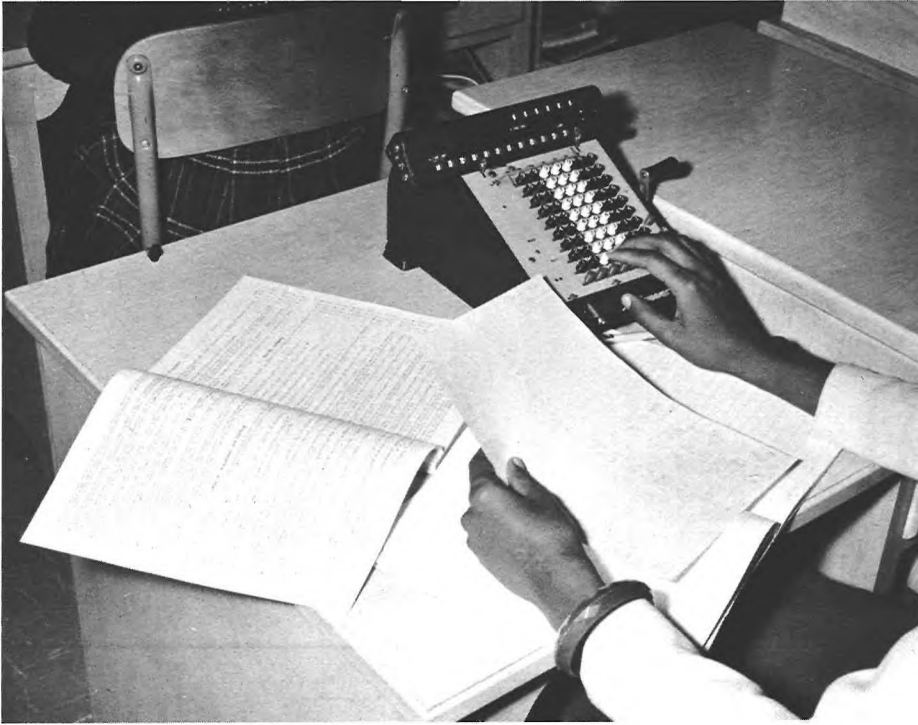

Mr. Hoffmann, the President of the Board, deliberates one of the many problems facing the Board.

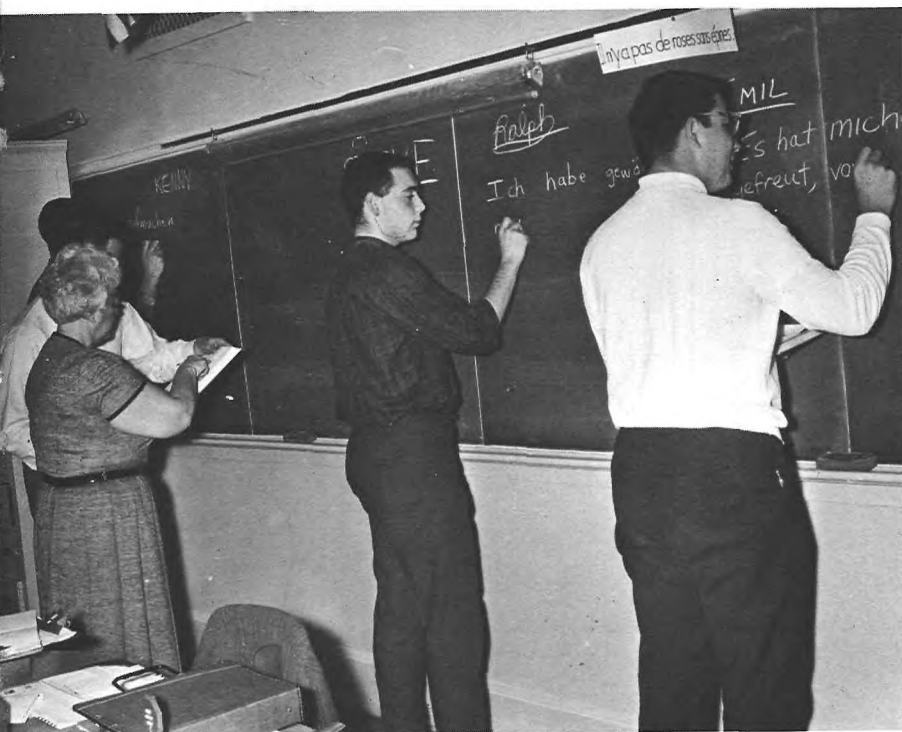

The Board of Education is not only the policy-making body of the schools in this district, but also a representative of East Orange itself. The members of the Board are vitally concerned with one of the most important facets of any city, state, or country: the education of its youth. Because now the future citizens of East Orange are a part of a school system which is under the guidance of the Board, and because to a great extent the future of East Orange depends on the success of the Board of Education, its obligation to impart the ideals of true citizenship to its youth is more important than we realize.

The responsibilities of the Board are manifold, but are carried out with efficiency and economy. Hiring well-qualified teachers and establishing their salaries, choosing textbooks, formulating rules, and making major decisions concerning the school system are examples of functions of the Board.

In short, the Board of Education plays an integral part in the smooth operation of East Orange schools. Moreover, the Board is important to the individual student, for although its influence is subtle, its effect constantly enables us to gain the knowledge which will eventually shape our future.

"Give me a man who reads," say leaders of business, government, industry; and, by implication, one who writes, speaks, and listens with competence. The English Department would have each student realize his full potential in these skills. They nourish success in other subjects; they are increasingly requisite to economic independence and responsible citizenship; and, to the degree that one lacks them, he is cut off from the past and the present, with all they have to tell his mind and heart.

As communication is the soul of the vital business of every-day living, so a facility with and a profound respect for English is the functional center of communication. Our work, our leisure, even the laws by which we live are influenced by our knowledge of English. The Department provides many levels of materials, instruction, and expectation in order to fit, as nearly as possible, the varied abilities and goals of close to 2000 students. The four year curriculum, on all levels, provides a broad spectrum of experiences in reading, writing, speaking, and listening to our great inheritance and common bond—the English language.

“We are forever searching for new techniques so that our students may benefit in the learning process of the languages. We are sure that the world is shrinking, and that for business, pleasure, and peace, we have to study the languages and cultures of other people. It is our goal to prepare our students for the language challenge in college, and for the beneficial use of languages in other avenues of life. We believe that by giving even a few hundred words and phrases of a language to a student, we have given him a part of the educational dowry which he can use when he travels as an individual Peace Corps representative.”

In this philosophy of the Foreign Language Department, Mr. DeMarzo imparts to us many of the goals of his Department. Not only is it important for a student to learn a foreign language in the light of expanding his own education, but it is also advantageous in the realm of international understanding.

The Foreign Language Department is a perpetual pioneer in search of interesting techniques. The new dimension called the Language Lab is the most recent development in this field, an asset to every foreign language student.

"the tools of mathematics . . . "

The Mathematics Department's objective is to enable each student to use competently the tools of mathematics in his everyday life and career. Specifically, its goals are: (1) to provide every student with facility in the basic skills of arithmetic, algebra and geometry, (2) to develop facility in the conversion of a practical situation into a form suitable for mathematical treatment, (3) to provide a firm foundation for further study of mathematics, and (4) to dispel the general fear of quantitative thinking framed in mathematical language. The department offers twelve courses to achieve these aims. To keep pace with the advancing Space Age, the mathematics department is in its second year of offering an Advanced Placement program. Allowed to enter only by invitation, the student studies calculus and related analytical geometry, the equivalents of a college freshman course. In May, those students who choose to do so, take an examination which, if passed, qualifies them to take sophomore year college mathematics upon entering college. Another new and stimulating addition to the curriculum this year is Math V and VI covering matrix algebra and probability.

The aim of the Science Department of East Orange High School is to give its students a deeper insight into the nature of the universe as we see it today, and to encourage and develop in each pupil the scientific knowledge and attitudes which are essential if one is to survive in our changing world. If students want to join the extracurricular activities of the Science Department, they may choose from a variety of clubs which offer them opportunities to develop a richer outlook and a better understanding of the need for science in our lives. We are fortunate to have a well-qualified staff which takes pride in teaching current information by the latest methods. For example, the furor created by the cigarette-cancer controversy led to experiments which were graphically demonstrated by a class-made "smoking machine". In the future the Science Department hopes to continue to give its students a broader awareness of what science can mean to them in their personal lives.

In a world complicated by the Cold War, the hydrogen bomb, and the race for space, understanding the history of our nation and the world assumes tremendous importance. Only by studying the past can we comprehend the present, and only by understanding the present can we become free, happy citizens of a modern democracy.

We must recognize that freedom has its responsibilities as well as its privileges. To enable students to understand this while teaching the basic history of our society is the aim of the Social Studies Department. To fulfill this objective, the Social Studies Department is continually modifying its teaching methods and expanding its established courses. New programs, such as the Problems of American Democracy, instituted this year, are periodically added to further enlighten the student. Under a modified team-teaching approach, students are rotated among several teachers, each of whom teaches a particular field. Other new programs include a series of lectures by visiting experts, an Americanization course for foreign students, and a Labor-Management Forum. All these changes are directed toward one basic objective: to replace the teaching of mere facts with the infinitely more important study of their development.

Every student in the Department of Business Education is given an opportunity to acquire occupational information regarding the various types of positions that are open to beginning office workers in the community. He is given information about prevailing working conditions, the skills and personal traits necessary for success, and the opportunities for advancement in each type of position. The student is given such facts about business institutions and common business practices as are valuable to him as a consumer of business goods and services. He is taught such simple skills as are necessary to use these services intelligently. Since more workers are dismissed from business because of undesirable personal traits than for any other reasons, an effort is made by all department staff members to lay a firm foundation for the development of those traits, habits, ideals, and personality that make for success in business. The purpose of the Department of Business Education is to provide the student with the occupational information and experience necessary in business, in developing his personal qualities so that they will best benefit our society.

The reason for the varied courses of study in the Speech Department is a basic one: “to develop poise, self confidence, and a sense of security in front of people in and out of class, thereby putting the student more at ease in his school, home, and social experiences.” Out of this objective stem the many areas of study which must be explored in order to allow the individual student to gain the experience necessary in expressing himself freely and without hesitation. Topics which pertain to, or are equal to, actual situations in life are especially useful. They are practical as well as stimulating and serve the students as a guide for situations which may one day confront them. For example, a job interview, a career talk, taking notes during an interview, and a lecture forum are a few of the many interesting assignments planned. In the more advanced stages of speech, a course in play production is introduced. This is a “study of the more important aspects of the theater.” It includes everything and everyone from the actors down to the stage crew. The phases of the theater are explored even further by Buskin and Brush, the Speech Department-sponsored dramatics club, which this year presented a thought-provoking interpretation of Thornton Wilder’s “Our Town”. As a final task, the speech student is presented with an extremely soul-searching question, which is “what do I want out of life?” Certain achievements are always dreamed of. These accomplishments may be judged only by what they yield. The accomplishments of the speech department were well expressed by Mr. Mohn, head of the department, who said, “those accomplishments were the unseen harvests.”

The object of the Art Department of East Orange High School is to develop in each student an appreciation of art and how it has evolved. The art student studies every form of expressive art including sculpture, painting, ceramics and jewelry-making. Originality is always stressed, and to achieve this the student is urged to experiment on his own. A variety of materials can be used, from clay to paints and from wood to textiles. But art does not only consist of experimentation. The department also attempts to give the student a knowledge of what contemporary art and other types of art are all about. The Art Department often works with other departments. For example, if the English department is studying modern literature, the art students illustrate their studies with modern paintings or sculptures. This integration of knowledge between departments helps to give each student a greater appreciation of their studies. Each spring at the annual art exhibit, students of every level of art display their talents to their parents and teachers. Every form of art is represented.

The Distance Judgment Test in Drivers' Education helps students realize their visual limitations while on the road.

Our Department of Driver Education is very busy educating our teenagers for a lifetime of safe and enjoyable automobile driving. By 1970 there will be more than 100 million drivers in this country. By 1970 there will be three cars on the road for every two now in use. Despite vast highway building programs, the future will bring extremely heavy traffic concentrations, especially in and around East Orange which is a corridor city in a corridor state. Our teenagers will find themselves exposed to dangerous situations more frequently than ever before in the history of the automobile. During the next ten years there will be greater need for orderly, disciplined, careful, and safe driving. In fact, in order to survive in the complex traffic situations of the future, our students here at East Orange High must develop a pride in high standards of performance and conduct in the use of the automobile, and our complete course of 30 hours classroom instruction and 6 hours Behind-the-Wheel instruction is our greatest hope of avoiding or at least coping with the traffic chaos that appears to be destined for the future.

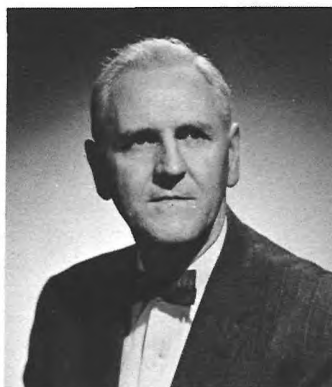

Mr. Miller points out the importance of careful driving by the use of charts on the bulletin board.

Judy Hein, Marion Pories, and Catherine Nastasi cheer Terry Chiaravallo on while the latter handles her first Behind-the-Wheel assignment.

“applying intelligence to practical problems . . . ”

Plato wrote: “A sound mind in a sound body.” We of the Industrial Arts Department believe that this wise principle is too often disregarded. One of our major aims is to bring about a fusion of these two qualities—we feel that we are following the trend in modern education towards training in practical as well as academic skills. Building a table or making a radio requires not only manual technique but also training in applying intelligence to practical problems. Neither of these factors should be overemphasized: both are essential to modern living. In order to achieve these aims we are constantly revamping our program. Tentative new courses for next year include an automotives major and a course in electronics. Both of these are in response to requests from students who have displayed increasing interest in industrial arts. Last year our limited facilities caused us to reject over 100 potential students. We hope that by presenting an interesting and varied program we can keep pupils in school who might otherwise become dropouts as well as help all our students lead full and satisfying lives.

The teachers in the Home Economics Department believe that homemaking is a profession which requires careful preparation and consistent training if it is to be carried on effectively. Each of the teachers in the Department is dedicated to train girls in becoming well-adjusted in their future homes. The homemaking experiences offered in school should develop constructive attitudes toward personal, home, and community living. An informal, homelike atmosphere is maintained within the department as a setting for the various learnings; this setting contributes toward a more satisfying view of home and family living. This year the modern living classes are being taught from a new study guide written for the State Department of Education by one of our own Home Economics teachers—Miss Rudes. Another experiment new to the Home Economics classes is the application of the Concept Method, which is a new way to teach Home Economics. An old but popular attraction is the annual May fashion show, in which many students demonstrate their sewing ability by modeling clothing which they had made in class.

Miss Lennox observes Patty Duke preparing what might eventually be a prom dress.

Sharon Houston and Wendy Lawrence work hard to learn the elements of homemaking.

“jazz to classical to modern to rock ’n’ roll . . . ”

Under the leadership of its director, Mr. Richard G. Berggren, the Instrumental Music Department's groups experience a variety of musical worlds. Ranging from jazz to classical to modern to rock 'n' roll, the pieces studied are selected to give the students a well-rounded background as well as to satisfy their interests in individual fields. Most popular of the groups is the Dance Band, or, if you prefer, the Dance Orchestra, which rehearses jazz and rock 'n' roll on Thursday mornings. The Concert Band plays baroque to Bartok in preparation for its annual Spring performance, in which production it is assisted by the Woodwind Ensemble. Finally, and as a prelude to the rest, is the Cadet Band, an indoctrination session for freshmen. “Graduates” of this course step into the Concert Band as acceptable musicians.

Mr. Gilbert accompanies James Boyd and Darlene Gayles in a duet from Madame Butterfly, which they later presented in assembly.

One of the primary objectives of the Vocal Music Department is to develop a profound interest in and appreciation for the vocal arts. To achieve this the Vocal Music Department performs the magnificent works of many celebrated composers. In addition to performing works which are designed to give pleasure to both the performer and the listener, the student is given training which will enable him to become a competent musician. This training, given to the student during his first year in the department, is designed to enable the student to perform the great masterworks with the ease and assurance that makes singing the enjoyable experience that it is. Highlighting the musical events of each year are the Winter and Spring Concerts. This year the Vocal Music Department performed a most beautiful Winter Concert. In addition to the traditional pieces, works by Ernest Block, Benjamin Britten, and Ottorino Respighi were performed. To appropriately end a very successful year, the Vocal Music Department staged a magnificent Spring Concert consisting mainly of two Operas: Mefistofele by Arigo Boito and Sister Angelica by Giacomo Puccini.

Achieving vocal harmony among singers is an important goal of the music department, as shown here in the Girls' Glee Club.

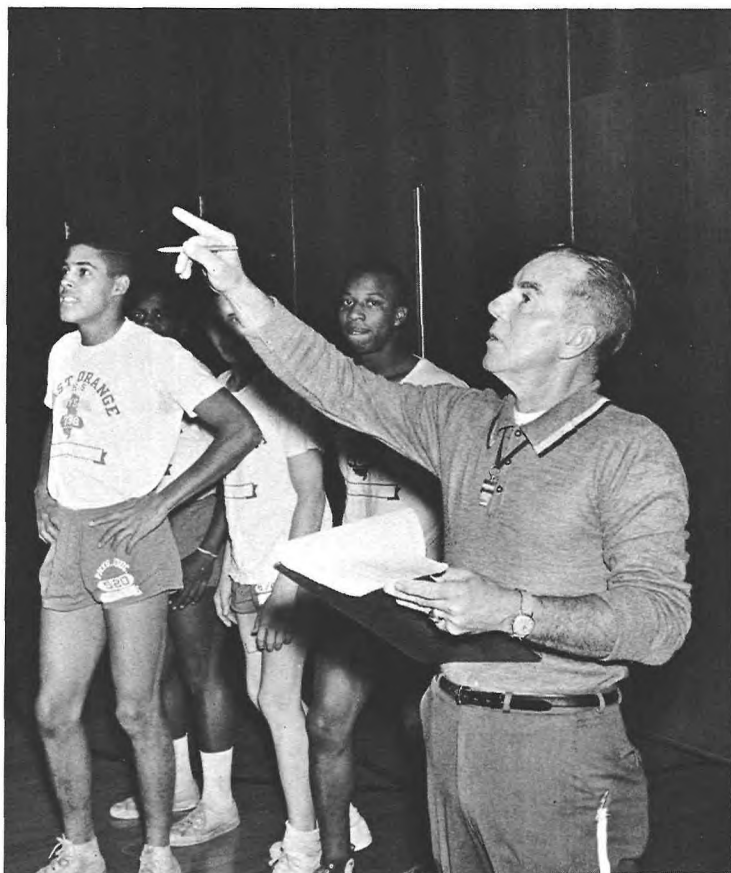

"to strengthen the body as well as the mind..."

The purpose of education has always been to strengthen the body as well as the mind. In order to achieve this end, East Orange High School has instituted a program of vigorous physical activity. This program not only builds up the body but also instills good sportsmanship and a sense of cooperation in its participants. The two main divisions of boys' physical education are the actual time spent in gym and that time spent in the study of health. The gym classes are divided into three parts; games, calisthenics, and apparatus. The games include football, soccer, basketball, baseball and sometimes combinations of all four! The calisthenics are usually done to Mr. Welsh's recordings. The apparatus program is performed on a variety of equipment such as the back, the parallel bars, the horse, the rings, and the ropes. The health classes study personal hygiene and a course in first aid. A complete program of after-school recreation is offered. This program is a year-round one which includes bowling, touch football, basketball, ping-pong, baseball, and various other activities.

Keeping the female population of our school physically fit is the rewarding job of Filomena Scuderi, Elizabeth Allen and Roslyn Lightfoot. These excellent gymnastic instructors try to offer sports which upper-class girls may pursue as hobbies in their future lives. Tennis, badminton, and bowling are three of the sports the department offers. Character, leadership, and citizenship are stressed in this important part of the school curriculum as is the training of young minds and bodies to operate well together. The employing of squad leaders, selected in each individual class, aids in the execution of a successful session. These girls not only help the teacher, but they also make the class more enjoyable. Learning to share in sports activities helps girls to develop a sound mental make-up in all of their habits and attitudes. Girls are taught many American folk dances, yet are also encouraged to learn to appreciate the folk dancing done in other countries. The game of basketball moreover, was greatly changed. This added further enjoyment to a worthwhile class. The teachers of the Girls' Physical Education Department have to undertake a most important and decidedly difficult role in their tireless efforts to educate our girls. In every way they are accomplishing this valuable task.

Miss Allen lectures her class on the principles of basketball, played girls' style.

For the first time in its history, East Orange High School produced a football team which fought its way to an undisputed state championship. The 1963 squad swept to nine consecutive victories against the best competition New Jersey had to offer. Head Coach Tom Dean brought his four-year record at E.O. to a very impressive 30-4-2. The coach was proud of the fact that enough boys were interested in the game this year to field five full teams. The varsity season began with a hard fought 13-6 victory over Belleville. Next came three successive wins over Nutley, St. Benedict's, and Irvington, by scores of 20-0, 33-14, and 33-7 respectively. These triumphs set the stage for New Jersey's "Game of the Year." Undefeated Montclair travelled to Martens Stadium to challenge undefeated East Orange. In a gruelling defensive battle, the Cats scored two touchdowns in the second half to down their old nemesis, 13-7. The Panthers had little time to rest on their laurels, however, for the next week highly-rated Phillipsburg paid a call on East Orange. The Cats made two first quarter scores stand up for a 12-6 win, and thus won their second "must" game in a row. Finishing the campaign on the road, the Red and Blue made short work of Orange, Columbia, and Barringer. The season was capped by the 33-6 romp over the Big Blue. At the year's end, the squad was chosen State Champions by the Saylor ratings, Newark News, and Newark Star Ledger. Coach Dean was selected "Coach of the Year" in the Star Ledger, and Jim Oliver, Quincey Yarborough, George Coppola, and Gaylord George were picked as All-Staters in both newspapers.

The 1963 Soccer Team was beset by many obstacles even before the season began. Many of the key players on last year's Big Ten Championship team graduated, and several others left East Orange during the summer. Furthermore, a number of players Coach McGuckin was counting on were declared ineligible for the first half of the season. Despite these obstacles, the Panther booters were still able to turn in a 4-10-1 record. After six defeats the Cats surprised previously undefeated Livingston 3-1. With this initial victory under its belt, the soccer team played .500 ball the rest of the season. The highlight of the year came during the last game of the season when the booters bested highly rated Clifford Scott 1-0 to win the City Championship. Playing in mud and rain, the Cats put together a real team effort to come away with the trophy, a glass jar filled with mud. Looking ahead to next year, Mr. McGuckin hopes for a more successful season. Many of the younger players on this year's squad have matured to such a point that East Orange could once again become a state soccer power.

Senior Reggie Henry was the best cross-country runner produced in the history of East Orange High School. During this season, Reggie established four new records: West Park Record—12:09; Branch Brook Park (Big Ten)—12:50; Essex County—12:42; and East Orange High School Record — 12:09. Another notable was Lorenzo Goins, a sophomore, who placed second in all dual meets, and fifth at the Big Ten. Other mainstays were Alvin Davis and Byron Cook, seniors; Shelton Pitre, junior; and Ted Thompson, freshman. There was particular team effort displayed through the third place taken in the Hudson County C.Y.O. Tri-County Meet; Third in the Big Ten Meet and a Fourth in the Essex County Meet. This year's team was better than last year's, although the record doesn't show it. The team lost many meets by only one or two points, due to injuries received by Ronald Stokes, Gregory Peniston, and Anthony Thornton which prevented them from entering some contests. The season's record was an average one, with the team winning nine meets, and losing six.

Mr. Wharton gives some running tips to Lorenzo Goins and Reggie Henry.

Three Panthers are way ahead of the closest runner from the opposing team.

A promising beginning . . .

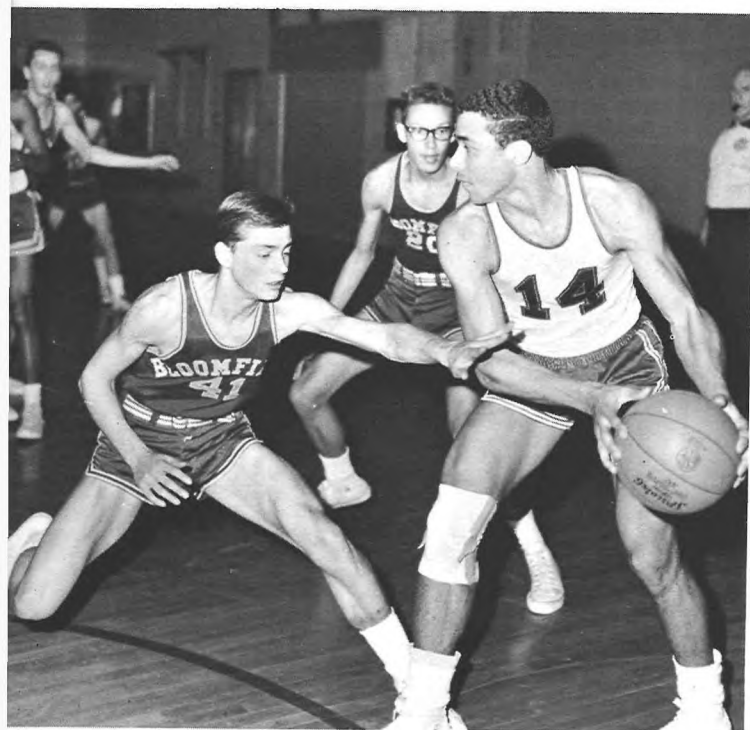

KNEELING: L. Bowen, B. Lovett, H. James. STANDING: G. Richardson, G. George, R. Sheffield, P. Blake, T. Lewis, R. Wright, G. Hamilton, M. Turner.

This year's team was an all-senior one, and was expected to go all the way, but due to certain circumstances, it was denied the opportunity of the state championship title. The Big Ten standing at the end of the season was fourteen wins and four losses. The team was seeded second with West Orange in the Big Ten Conference. The team was upset by Bloomfield in the first round of the Essex County Tournament. In the first round of the State Tournament, Livingston fell to the Panthers. In the second round, though, Central came out on top—45 to 39. Many teams feared Bill Lovett and set up their defenses accordingly, to deal with his deadly break away lay-ups. When this occurred, Mr. Milner would set up the offense around Tim Lewis who would put in jump-shots from the outside. Tim started out slow, averaging only six to eight points per game in the beginning of the season. Then he began to hit, averaging twelve to sixteen points a game. Harry James showed good judgment in setting up plays, usually setting up a play by dribbling down court and passing to Bill Lovett for the lay-up. Ronald Sheffield was considered one of the best rebounders the team has had in a long time, while Gaylord George was a steady performer and a good playmaker, also pulling down many rebounds.

Mr. Milner offers pre-game advice to Billy Lovett and Harry James.

A pre-game warm-up.

A slow start . . .

FIRST ROW: J. Guzman, J. Sestilio, J. McAniff, A. Shorts, R. Thompson, B. Jones, J. Morgan, P. Zipfel, M. Thompson. SECOND ROW: T. Nych, J. Watson, J. Ross, S. Fuchs, J. Mirabella, A. Harris, J. Nilio, P. Rodriguez, A. Antaki, Mr. DeSantis.

After dropping their first 12 starts, the East Orange High School Ice Hockey Team bounced back to close out the season with three victories and an impressive tie over a highly touted team. Highlighting the campaign was a 4-2 victory over arch rival Montclair sandwiched between two triumphs over West Orange by scores of 2-0, and 2-1, respectively. In their final outing, the panthers held the defending league champions West Essex Regional to a 2-2 tie. Captain Steve Fuchs, a defenseman, and co-captain Jim Ross, who was a spectacular goaltender, were the only returning lettermen and formed the nucleus of this year's squad. Teaming with Fuchs on defense was Jim Watson, who developed rapidly during the season. This pair often skated an entire game without a breather, a rarity in hockey. Comprising the team's first offensive line were Joe Mirabella, Barry Jones, and Joé Sestillio. Mirabella, who led the team in scoring, was particularly effective during the late season surge. Jones, a speedy wingman, with a fine shot, tied with Fuchs for runnerup honors in scoring. Sestillio, though only a junior, proved himself a solid performer. Hard checking Reggie Thompson, a converted defenseman, joined scrappy John Nilio, and speedy Jim McAniff on the second line. The last three are all juniors and will return next year.

Steve Fuchs serves one over the net.

The 1963 Tennis season was the Panthers' best in the past five years. The netsters, under Coach Kenneth T. Wilson, sported an 8-10 won-lost record as compared to the 1-14 slate of 1962. Junior captain Steve Fuchs completed his second season at the difficult first singles slot. Junior Les Weitzman and sophomore Bob Sembrat, who had the team's best individual record, handled the other two singles positions. Comprising the two doubles combinations were juniors Marshall Fish, Al Antaki, Larry Kessler, and senior Sal Meola. This unit compiled a 6-9 record during the regular season. The squad scored two victories over Clifford Scott by 5-0 scores to earn the mythical city championship for the second straight year. Victories were also posted over Bloomfield (twice), Irvington, and Nutley. At the close of regular season play, Coach Wilson selected Fuchs, Weitzman, Sembrat, and Fish to compete in the state tournament in Princeton. In the first two rounds the E.O. contingent whipped Holy Cross Academy by a score of 2-1, and St. Peter's Prep 3-0. In the third round of play, the Panthers very nearly upset highly touted Dickinson, but the Hudson County champions did manage to escape with a 2-1 victory. With all but one of the seven lettermen returning, next year's outlook is bright, and hopes for a winning season are high.

Coaches Brennan and De Santis discuss some of the records set by members of the track team.

Sparked by a covey of top senior track men, the Panthers have racked up an undefeated season, along with another Essex County Group III and IV Championship. The outcome of the Long Branch relays afforded Coach Charles Brennan a great satisfaction. The relays took place on a bitter cold day, with a biting wind whipping across the field. The relay team, composed of John Freeman, Tom Jackson, Fred Hoggard, and Berkley Brown, came in first in both the 440 and the 880 that afternoon. The mile and seven-eighths medley was also won by the Panthers. Many individual records were set in the State Meet. Among these was the school record of a mile in 4:23.2, set by Reggie Henry, who took second place in the State Meet. Another second was taken by Berkley Brown in the high hurdles. Tom Jackson, who went undefeated in competition, is now the State Champion in the broad jump. The Panthers exhibited a fine performance in the Big Ten Relays, placing first for the first time in 12 years, and setting a record of 55.1 in the shuttle hurdles. It was also the first time we came out on top in the Newark Invitation Meet.

Bruce Greene tries to set new school records in high jumping.

Ted Thompson seems to be suspended in mid-air.

For the fourth successive year the Panthers turned in a winning season. In a bid for two straight State Sectional Championships, the charges of Coach Wayne Von Stetten lost in the semi-finals of the State Tournament to Bloomfield by a 3-1 count. Led by Captain Jim Greene, East Orange turned in ten wins in eighteen contests during the regular season. Over all, the final season's tally was eleven wins and ten losses. The team finished fourth in the Big Ten Conference and was picked by the Greater Newark Tournament Committee to participate in its 30th annual tournament. East Orange was honored by having Coach Von Stetten named to head the Seeding and Selection Committee in this oldest and most respected baseball tournament in the State. The hopes of the Red and Blue for the GNT championship were shattered early when they were eliminated by a strong Livingston High in the first round by a score of 1-0. The 1963 Panthers were not slated to have a strong club as the season began. Most of the regulars from the State Championship team of 1962 were lost through graduation. Starting the season with but five lettermen, the team worked hard and became a solid aggregation by the middle of the campaign. Boys such as shortstop Andy Pelak, first baseman Harry James, third baseman Wayne McElveen, outfielder Dennis Fleming, and second baseman Luther Bowen moved up from the junior varsity and gave an excellent account of themselves in varsity competition. All of these boys mentioned were on hand as the 1964 season began and will, quite naturally, form the nucleus of this year's squad.

Tensions build as the game progresses.

Andy Pelak takes a cautious lead from the base.

Mike Ehret makes a dash for first base.

Mike Rein scrambles to first base under the careful eye of the umpire.

The Student Council is one of the outstanding organizations of our school. The five officers, along with the homeroom representatives and a faculty advisor, help run their own student government. The council also plans many worthwhile activities throughout the year, hoping to create school spirit among the students. The main objective of the 1963-64 Student Council was the Foreign Exchange Program. With hopes that a foreign student might enter our school in September '64, the entire council worked hard to raise the necessary funds. A weekly homeroom collection contributed to the treasury along with many other activities, among which were dances, a coke and candy concessions at basketball games, the sale of football pins, and a fashion show. The Interclub Council Fashion Show was a project in which many people worked long hours to produce. Student models displayed the current trends in school clothes, date dresses, and formal wear to the audience. A popular vocalist lent unexpected enjoyment to this extravaganza. Last November, the council officers attended a conference at Rutgers University along with officers of Student Councils from other schools. It was a profitable experience for everyone who attended and helped form new goals for a better Student Council next year.

Responsible for filling in the student body on the current happenings of the school, the East Orange High School News has adequately fulfilled its responsibility in past years, and continues to do so at present. Coming out once a month, each issue involves a complicated routine. Starting with assignment day, the stories are then written, handed in, and edited on copy day. Galley day, a few days later, is a last minute check on the copy as returned from the printers, where last minute corrections and changes are made. This year's editors are Larry Simms, editor-in-chief; Diane Caprio, managing editor; Stephen Fuchs, front page editor; Barbara Merchant, feature editor; Kenneth Ply, sports editor, and Larry Kessler, News editor. These people all started at the bottom of the ladder, commonly called tyros. After three issues of work and accomplishment, the tyro is appointed a reporter. After six more issues the rank of star reporter is given to them. In March of their Junior year, they and other Juniors were considered for the six editorial posts.

ECHOES STAFF

FIRST ROW: S. Emch, S. Crystal, J. Boyd. SECOND ROW: J. Tallmadge, D. Fogg.

Echoes, now in its third year, has become an accepted school publication and is now regarded by the school with pride and interest. However, it is still very young. Mrs. Cohen, its advisor, and Stephen Crystal, editor-in-chief, have watched Echoes grow from a tentative idea to an accepted reality. Its staff has grown from its initial five to a present ten. Symbolic of the increasing school interest in its newest publication, Echoes has created a brand new stimulus for creative writing as each hopeful author wonders, “will my story be published?” Also, the number of contributors has grown immensely; every year more and more students have become budding authors. Besides the obvious debt to its contributors, much of the credit for this upward trend must go to the tireless Echoes staff. These students did not hesitate to spend many hours of their time both in and out of school reading and judging the works submitted. They may have disagreed on a particular story or issue, but they were held together by one common desire—to make the 1963 Echoes the best ever.

Mrs. Cohen watches while Echoes editors Sue Emch, Roy Crystal, Gerry Bodenstein, John Tallmadge, and Steve Crystal review literary magazines of other schools.

"Scholarship, service, leadership, character."

The objective of the National Honor Society is "to create an enthusiasm for scholarship, to stimulate a desire to render service, to promote worthy leadership, and to encourage the development of character in students." A chapter council consisting of three faculty members and the principal are responsible for the election of members to this organization. One faculty member, Miss Frances De Luke, is the advisor to the society. Qualifications for membership in the society are high standards in scholarship, service, leadership and character. Only students of the junior and senior classes are eligible and shall have attended the school for two semesters. All students considered for membership must have participated in at least one extra-curricular activity each year of attendance in East Orange High School. The society offers a tutoring service in all areas of study to students who feel they need extra help or advice for their school work. The students chosen for membership in the National Honor Society accept this as an honor and try to live up to the high ideals and challenges set before them.

Members of the National Honor Society help the school through an after-school tutoring service.

The many clubs at East Orange High School offer each and every student an opportunity to pursue his interests in a creative manner. All clubs are run under charters issued by the Student Council, and the Interclub Council, composed of organization presidents, reviews the workings of the member groups. The foreign language clubs are among the most active in the school. The Junior Classical League, sponsored "slave" sales to increase the treasury. A May banquet highlighted the school year. Il Circolo Italiano, Le Cercle Francais, and Los Cervantinos similarly ran money-raising projects, and culminated the school year with parties. At Christmastime, all four language clubs joined together for a holiday fest. Under the direction of Mrs. Colby, the Biology Club planted trees as part of the Centennial Celebration. This year, the Chemistry Club joined the circle of science organizations, namely the Astronomy, Meteorology, and Biology Clubs. Most of its year was spent preparing a charter. The Debating Club, sponsored by Mr. Wenger, held many stimulating debates this year, one of which was the controversial subject of the harms of tobacco. The Future Physicians' Club similarly sponsored a program on the ills of tobacco, brought on by the discoveries of the President's Council. The Future Teachers of America continued its fine work in guiding high school students on worthy careers as elementary, secondary, and college teachers.

"Beyond the call . . ."

The service groups of E.O. form an integral part of the every day workings. These range from the people who present an assembly program to those who take the responsibility of monitoring study halls. The Projectionists, under the watchful eye of Mr. Bowden, are in charge of the Visual Aids, so important to the classroom curriculum. Not only does this group work the equipment, but also the office staff orders materials based on teachers' needs. Another important group is the Student Court. Darlene Gayles and Andrew Pelak are the Chief Justices. It is the task of the student judges to hand out detention assignments based on the complaints of student monitors and teachers in study halls. The study hall officers must maintain order in addition to taking an accurate attendance record. The Stage Lighting Crew, the Auditorium Squad, and the Assembly Readers and Chairmen are an important part of the weekly assembly period. While the Auditorium Squad seats the student body in an efficient and orderly manner, the Stage Crew, and the Readers and Chairmen, under the direction of Mr. Mohn, help prepare a pleasing visual and oral program.

Of prime importance among East Orange's many service organizations are the Nurses' Assistants, the Candystripers, and the Junior Red Cross Council. Under Mrs. Gilroy, the school nurse, a squad of girls help out each period in the medical offices. Helping with clerical work and observing the work of Mrs. Gilroy herself, prospective nurses are given a rare insight into their chosen career. The Candystripers, sponsored by Miss Lindsay, work at the various hospitals in the area, and are a wonderful example of the first-rate citizens East Orange High School produces. The Junior Red Cross Council, through the many homeroom representatives, sponsors a spring drive to raise money for the Red Cross. During the month of October, students are asked to bring in various items for hospital use.

The band, twirlers, and color guard compose an integral part of East Orange High School. Without the rousing strains of band music and colorful performances of the twirlers and color guard, our football games and other athletic events would lose much of their appeal.

This year, donning their tams and ascots, the band brought the new collegiate look to Martens Stadium. Under the leadership of Richard G. Berggren, many outstanding and intricate half-time drills were presented. Beginning the season with a trophy, the twirling squad did much to enhance these performances, and a new feature twirler with a fire baton and an array of costumes lent her talent to the best football season ever. Also adding to the new look, the color guard performed many difficult gun drills.

The Man Who Came To Dinner

Whiteside: I may vomit!

Whiteside: Don't be jealous, puss, just because Lorraine Sheldon is more glamorous than you are.

Miss Preen: But Mr. Whiteside, those candies aren't good for you!
Whiteside: My great-aunt Jennifer ate a whole box of these every day of her life, and she lived to be 103.

Harriet: These are just a few mementoes of my past.

“Your move, Mr. Whiteside . . .”

CLASSES

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

C. Lonesome, S. Wilson, I. Penn, M. Elkas.

We're finally seniors! The road has been long and rocky, but we've finally made it. Now graduation is in the immediate future. The future is a terribly big thing, and we must learn to go out and face it. For some, there is still more formal education, while for others, business or the service will follow. Has it all been worth it? Have the heartbreak and tears justified the end? Though you may have failed Algebra, or you may not have made the team, the feel of that diploma in your hand is a very special feeling, and worth all the effort you put into it. Soon the doors of East Orange High School will close behind us. But before we do go out to face the world, let's recall the values we were taught in East Orange, and use them as guides for our future. Let's let the hard work of our teachers and counselors form our future, as we will someday form the futures of a generation to come.

"Good things come in small packages" . . . Sarah looks forward to a career in business administration after college . . . loves coffee, ice-cream, and good report cards.

SHEILAH JOYCE WILSON

Laughter is the spice of life for Sheila . . . parties are a welcome diversion but conceited boys, beware! . . . she expects to teach elementary school.

STEVEN C. WILSON

Wishing occupies much of Steven's leisure time . . . hopes to become a businessman and make lots of money . . . is glad to be graduating this year.

VICTORIA WILSON

Victoria has one hobby—Lonnie . . . spends much of her free time dancing, cooking, and listening to records . . . intends to become a private secretary.

JOANN I. WOODLEY

"Oh, really?" can often be heard from friendly Joann . . . likes to sew and listen to jazz in her free time . . . enjoys being herself.

JEAN EVELYN WORTHY

A fun lover, Jean will become an elementary school teacher . . . can usually be found in the band homeroom . . . despises people who take advantage of others.

EDWARD F. WRIGHT

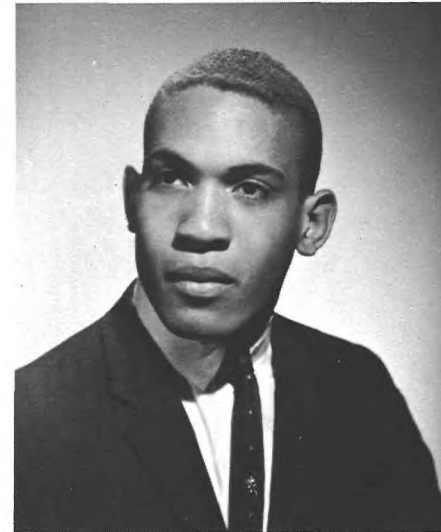

Edward is a gun collector . . . spends almost every free moment with that special girl . . . likes to listen to those "oldies but goodies."

LANCE WYATT

A three-year soccer man, Lance hopes to be a naval officer . . . likes girls, but conceited ones beware . . . enjoys home cooking very much.

QUINCY LEE YARBOROUGH

Gentle-mannered Quincy excels in rough sports . . . plans to attend college and take up pharmacy . . . will be remembered for outstanding work on Boys' Court.

LORRAINE YONITCH

Lorraine admires Jackie Kennedy . . . enjoys crowded lunch tables . . . dislikes staying up until all hours in the morning finishing homework.

THOMAS MICHAEL YORKE

Tom plans to enter the Air Force and study radar technology . . . likes swimming and those long weekends . . . ignores those stuck-up girls.

MARY ELIZABETH YOUNG

Known for liveliness, Mary is always the life of the party . . . not enthusiastic about Mr. V's assignments . . . wants to be an IBM operator.

YVONNE ANITA YOUNG

Yvonne is a picture of ambition, and desires to become a registered nurse . . . enjoys a fun-loving crowd, but not unfriendly folk . . . enjoys TV viewing.

LEE ZEGAR

Creative Lee anticipates entering the field of commercial art . . . enjoys painting and viewing art in its many forms . . . shuns away from those egotistical individuals.

PAUL E. ZIPFEL

Active Paul anticipates going into the Navy . . . when not skin diving he enjoys broadening his interests in geology and astronomy . . . simply abhors those long homework assignments.
